Local Democrats See a Light in Smith Backdown

Change of Front on Prohibition May Be Camouflage Hiding Plan to Nominate Him for United States Senator.

While the majority of local Democrats are keeping mum on the apparent change of front for Governor Smith announced by his state campaign manager, Franklin D. Roosevelt, in regard to prohibition, some of the more talkative are trying to reconcile the conflicting attitudes assumed by the crafty governor with the well known Tammany desire to keep the governor in office where he will be a valuable adjunct to the big political machine of which he is now the real but not the titular head.

Compared with the general Smith attitude of the past few years, the latest announcement from Franklin D. Roosevelt seems revolutionary.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, when asked whether the New York state delegation to the Democratic National Convention would try to have a moderately wet plank put in the Democratic national platform, answered: "Positively not; we do not propose to ask for any declaration for a modification of the Volstead act."

The Roosevelt statement is contrary not only to Democratic expectations but also to the general Smith history.

Why Smith Was Elected.

As a candidate for governor on three occasions, on two of which he was successful, Governor Smith was a decidedly "wet" candidate so far as talk was concerned. It is generally conceded that his wet promises in the two campaigns in which he was successful were entirely responsible for his tremendous majorities. The people of the state of New York had plenty of opportunity to see how prohibition was working and they were disgusted with it. When both branches of the state legislature last year passed the Mulian-Gage law repealer, it became a law with Governor Smith's signature.

But when Governor Smith began to be mentioned as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, his attitude on prohibition began to assume a new significance.

Where Smith Is Opposed.

In the first place, reports began to come from the western and southern sections of the United States that Democrats would not accept him as a Presidential candidate because of his wet record. Many of the western and southern Democrats who talked in that way were not personally dry, but they had the general Democratic idea that prohibition is good as a political issue, to be kept alive, if not too rigidly enforced. There were also other reasons which they advanced against the Smith candidacy.

It was not surprising to political observers when Governor Smith last winter called a conference of district attorneys of the state of New York and gave a talk before them in which he emphasized the statement that the Volstead law was a Federal statute and it was up to the Federal authorities to enforce it, but that the duty of everybody was to obey the prohibition law whether they liked it or not. The latter part of the Smith speech was widely advertised as proof that Governor Smith was not wet at heart, and announcements from the west and south showed that he was regaining some of the prestige he had lost by his former wet record, but that he was still being strongly opposed.

Roosevelt an Active Talker.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt was picked as the state campaign manager immediately after the death of Charles F. Murphy, he began talking and he has been quite active in that line ever since. In fact, political sagas of other countries than Ulster have said that he talks too much, but in Ulster a Democrat's value is based on his ability to talk continuously, upon the slightest provocation and even without provocation or excuse. Some of the local Democrats have concluded that the Franklin D. Roosevelt talks are for the purpose of distracting attention from what actually is taking place within the state Democratic organization.

Murphy Evolved a Plan.

At heart, but few local Democrats believe that Governor Smith could be elected President even if he should get the nomination. The first great obstacle to be overcome, of course, is President Coolidge, whose nomination by the Republicans at Cleveland next week is certain. Even assuming that Governor Smith could carry New York state, his candidacy for President would arouse antagonism in other sections of the country which would be extremely hard to overcome. This condition before his sudden death, and to have evolved a plan whereby he could make use of the Smith wet record without sacrificing Smith, yet not appear to be backing down from his announced intention of nominating the New Yorker for President on the Democratic ticket. Compromise was always part of the Murphy program.

Smith Figurehead for Trading.

Murphy figured that by bringing the Democratic national convention to New York city this month he would command more power in the selection of its candidates, and he figured rightly. He could not have secured the convention for the Metropolitan without the aid of several other notable Democratic bosses.

Lowden Choice of Republicans

Head of Greatest Marketing Organization in the Country First Choice of Republican Leaders For Coolidge's Running Mate—Herbert Hoover Also Mentioned—Boom For General Harbord.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Cleveland, O., June 5.—Despite his seeming unwillingness to accept it, ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, continued to rule a favorite today in the vice presidential reckoning that is going on among Republican leaders gathered here for the Coolidge ratification convention next week.

Unless Governor Lowden takes some definite public stand against his being named, or President Coolidge indicates he wants some one else, it seemed entirely possible today that after the convention next week goes through the motions of adopting a platform and nominating Calvin Coolidge, the millionaire farmer of Illinois will be drafted to fill out the 1924 ticket.

It cannot rightly be said there is any vice-presidential "contest" for there are no candidates in the open and avowed sense. A dozen men are considered available timber and of the lot the former governor who almost was nominated at Chicago four years ago in place of Harding, commands the greatest following among the party leaders now in Cleveland. It may be that the delegates, when they start pouring in here on Sunday will bring some ideas on the subject, but if left to the leaders Governor Lowden would probably be the choice.

Back of the Lowden strength among the party's lieutenants is the vague and haunting shadow of Senator Robert La Follette and the havoc he is capable of wrecking in the northwest.

Members of the national committee and others are almost a unit in believing that some one must be chosen for second place on the ticket who balances the New Englandism of Calvin Coolidge and, at the same time, have a speaking acquaintance with and knowledge of the disgruntled wheat and livestock growers of the west and northwest. From this viewpoint Governor Lowden is described as "ideal." For the past two years he has done little else but travel through the regions where dissatisfaction is supposedly most pronounced, speaking at farmers' conventions and swapping stories with them of personal farming experiences. The governor not only is a farmer himself, but he incidentally heads the greatest cooperative marketing organization in the country. The Republican platform will heartily endorse cooperative marketing and not legislative enactment, as the chief remedy for the economic ills besetting the farmer.

Talking of the vice-presidential bids the air of Cleveland's hotel lobbies, and around Republican headquarters—largely because there is nothing else to talk about. The presidency is settled and the platform is now being written in Washington under President Coolidge's supervision. Men who have in other years engaged in weighty conferences over the party's future stand about the lobbies puffing smoke at the ceiling and calculating on second place on the ticket, a post forgotten at other conventions until weightier matters were out of the way.

It is accepted without question in this pre-convention talk that Governor Lowden is President Coolidge's first choice. It is even accepted that a White House emissary saw the Illinoisan within the past ten days with a definite offer of White House backing for the post if he would take it, and the story goes that Governor Lowden turned it down.

On the other hand, it is pointed out that vice-presidents in the past have been vociferous in their refusals prior to the convention, but always "came around" once the nomination actually was made. Roosevelt did it in 1900; Fairbanks in 1916. Both declared that under no circumstances would they accept the post, but they did.

If, however, Governor Lowden remains adamant in his refusal to be considered for the job, it is entirely possible administration support may be thrown to Herbert Hoover, former secretary of commerce, who has submitted to being "drafted" for many other jobs in the past.

Hoover is geographically desirable, hailing from California, and is considered to have sufficient appeal to the middle west to make him an available candidate.

A new boom was in the process of being launched here today on behalf of James G. Harbord, former major-general of the army and Pershing's assistant chief of staff. General Harbord retired from the army some months ago and has since devoted himself to guiding the destinies of the Radio Corporation of America. He has a distinguished military record and an experience as a civil administrator that is scarcely less notable.

Harbord's support is found in the New York delegation. One of his most consistent advocates is Senator

James Wadsworth, an administration leader in the senate who enjoys close relations with President Coolidge.

Governor Hyde of Missouri, ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, General Charles G. Dawes, ex-Governor Shoup of Colorado, Representative Burton of Ohio, Senator Capper of Kansas, these and other lesser lights from the great growing region between the Alleghenies and the Rockies figure in the pre-convention talk in Cleveland, but the ears of the leaders remain cocked in the direction of Washington, waiting for a hint from the White House as to Mr. Coolidge's choice.

Kingston Hooch Keeps Him Here

Rosendale Man Fined $5 Wednesday Morning for Public Intoxication, Picked Up Today by Officer Hess Two Other Drunks Face Judge Schirlick.

James Scott of Rosendale was arrested Tuesday night by the police for public intoxication, and Wednesday morning he paid a $5 fine in police court. At that time he expected to return home, but evidently before going decided to sample some more local hooch. As a result he was found helplessly drunk this morning at Broadway and Cornell street by Officer Hess. In fact, James had such a load aboard that Judge Schirlick remanded him to the county jail for two days to sober up before being tried.

Edward DeWitt, a negro from Hurley, was found drunk on Wall street Wednesday night by Officer Murphy. This morning Edward paid a $5 fine and returned to his job. John Arolan of Jersey City, a former resident, created a disturbance at Winter's lunch room on central Broadway while drunk Wednesday night. This morning he was sentenced to ten days in the county jail, but pleaded so hard to be allowed to return to Jersey City and his job that Judge Schirlick changed the sentence to a fine of $10, which Arolan paid.

French Struggle Nears Climax

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, June 5.—The struggle between President Millerand of France, and the victorious Left bloc, rapidly approached a climax today.

President Paul Painleve, of the Chamber of Deputies and President Doumergue, of the senate, both conferred with the National executive at the Elysee Palace on the general political and governmental situation. Later in the day President Painleve called at the Elysee Palace to discuss with Millerand the appointment of a new premier to succeed Raymond Poincare.

During the morning President Millerand had paid the customary "courtesy visit" to Painleve. It was accepted as a foregone conclusion that both Painleve and Doumergue would advise President Millerand to appoint Edouard Herriot, radical Socialist, to the premiership. Herriot is one of the chief leaders of the radical Socialist group making up the Left bloc. In the natural course of events Herriot would have been appointed premier without any quibbling, but the fight between President Millerand and the Left bloc put a new aspect upon things.

If possible Millerand wants to precipitate a debate upon his resignation in the chamber. Leaders of the Left bloc threaten to force his resignation unless he resigns voluntarily.

1 KILLED, 2 INJURED WHEN TRAIN STRUCK AUTO

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicopee, Mass., June 5. One man was instantly killed and two others were severely injured here today when the truck in which they were enroute from Holyoke to Chicopee was struck by a southbound Boston and Maine passenger train at a grade crossing.

The dead man is Henry Gilbert, chauffeur, of West street, Holyoke. Gilbert was hurled a distance of 75 feet and was instantly killed. His companions, Frank Cain, of 15 Main street, Holyoke, and Paul Landeau of Race street, Holyoke, were removed to Mercy hospital. Joseph Stinks escaped unhurt when he leaped from the machine. The truck is owned by the La France Construction Company. The machine was completely demolished.

Stabbed Victim Died Today

Stabber, Giuseppe Taglieri Is Still a Fugitive From Justice—State Troopers and Sheriff's Officers Still Searching.

Nazreni Picca, the Italian, who was stabbed in the abdomen with a carving knife Tuesday afternoon at Ulster Landing, by Giuseppe Taglieri, died at the Benedictine Hospital this morning about 3 o'clock. Taglieri is still a fugitive from justice, although a search has been kept up by sheriff's officers and State Troopers since Tuesday night.

The fugitive, who was hit on the back of the head by a brick by James Brinz, which wound was dressed by a doctor, wore a bandage about his head when he left Ulster Landing about two hours after the stabbing. He had then changed his shirt and clothes.

Although there were witnesses to the stabbing and many in the section knew of the tragedy, for some reason none of the people made an attempt to arrest Taglieri, and the sheriff's office was not notified until over two hours after the stabbing took place.

Garden Club Ball Like June Garden

Armory Decorations for Famous Ball Wednesday Night Finest Ever Seen There—Ball Was Great Success.

To those who attended Academy Green ball at the armory on Wednesday evening it was almost beyond belief that one was not instead entering a beautiful garden in June, so completely had the women of the Ulster Garden Club transformed the place. A garden wall of sentinel evergreen trees, and those of lesser height surrounded the armory on three sides, while the balcony was festooned with long sweeping, fringe-like boughs of the weeping-willow tree. The overhead lights were like golden birds in sun-colored cages hung about with the same willow fringe, throwing a soft and most becoming light upon the dancers. From light to light and from rafter to rafter there swung gay colored flags and pennants.

At the farther end of the armory, between two of the tall cedars, was the flower booth, where flowers and plants were for sale, though anything commercial seemed impossible in such a beauty spot. Masses of lilac, spirea, yucca, many tinted foliage formed the background for the masses of cut flowers which found their way to the guests of the evening. Then the bandstand was another work of floral art. At the back towering branches of blossoming dogwood, lilac, yucca, twin honeysuckle, spirea, flanked the two fine specimens of evergreens at either side, and then ran riot down and over the front of the platform, supported by smaller evergreen trees. At one corner masses of rose tree-peonies, exotic pink tulips and double lilacs enriched the decoration of blooming shrubbery of many sorts.

The same style of decoration was used for the lemonade booth, great clusters of spirea, pink yucca and lilacs fairly tumbling in profusion over the pool of lemonade. Another beauty spot was the refreshment room, where miniature hedges of evergreen and charmingly arranged bouquets of flowers on each little table gave to the place the appearance of a little formal garden in full bloom. And everywhere was the fragrance of the flowers.

And just as picturesque were the fair ladies of the Ulster Garden Club who presided over this garden of June, in their flowered or lovely colored garden frocks and picture, flower-trimmed garden hats, all most becoming.

As the dancers continued to arrive the garden idea grew and grew until the floor space blossomed with the flower-like gowns of the women, and the picture was one long to be remembered.

Those who enjoyed dancing were most enthusiastic in their praise of the wonderful Markel's orchestra, conducted by Michael Markel himself. Practically every dance number was encored, sometimes more than once.

During the evening delicious refreshments were served and at all times the lemonade booth was popular. Altogether, it was one of the most beautiful balls ever given at the armory and the proceeds, which will be used by the Garden Club for the permanent improvement of Academy Park with its new pool now filled with water, the gift of Mrs. Charles P. Canine, should go far toward accomplishing the desired effects that the Garden Club has in mind.

8 Cent Trolley Fare For 1 Year

Ticket or Cash Fare of Eight Cents Granted by Public Service Commission—No Change in Transfers, School or Other Reduced Rate Tickets—Advise One-man Trolley.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, June 5.—An order was issued Wednesday by the Public Service Commission permitting the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company to increase its cash or ticket fare to eight cents. The order permits that the change can be made on three days' notice, effective for one year and until further order of the commission. No change is made in the present regulation as to transfers, schools or other reduced rate tickets.

The company claimed that its present rate of seven cents, cash, with 16 tickets for $1, was insufficient to yield a reasonable return, and it contended that a ten cent cash fare and eight cent ticket fare should be permitted.

At a hearing of the interested parties held in Kingston January 23, 1924, two propositions were considered. The first was that operation of the old Washington avenue portion of the Colonial division be discontinued and that the system north of the power house be operated only during the five summer months. This would tend, it was claimed, to reduce the cost of service on the system.

The second proposition was to continue present service on the Kingston City division for the entire year but to operate the Colonial division only during the five summer months. This plan, it was also claimed, would also tend to reduce the cost of the entire service.

The company claims to have been steadily losing money. It has had considerable difficulty in financing itself and has never paid a dividend on its common stock. Dividends upon its preferred stock have not been paid regularly, some 24 per cent in dividends being now accumulated.

A valuation of $719,522 was claimed by the company. The commission, in its decision Wednesday, allows a valuation of $627,205.

The commission, in a memorandum by Commissioner Van Namee, says the cost of service on the Colonial division is undoubtedly the cause of the unsatisfactory operating results. Evidence showed that as many passengers were carried on the Colonial division during five summer months as during the remaining seven months of the year. Operating expenses in 1922 were $167,785 and the taxes $14,645, a total of $182,430.

Commissioner Van Namee says: "There was no evidence to indicate the company is not operating at a reasonable cost. On the contrary, the operating results of comparable electric street railroad companies of the state indicate that the operating expenses here are rather below the average."

"There was evidence that operating expenses will be increased approximately $3,000 in 1924 because of wage increases made in July, 1922. Substantial increases in taxes in 1924 were also indicated. Taxes, it was shown, have increased approximately 25 per cent since 1920."

"There has been a continuing decrease in the number of revenue passengers carried, with a loss in passenger revenue and a decrease in return." Commissioner Van Namee's memorandum states. "The increases in fare during the period have not produced enough revenue to counteract the constant annual loss in revenue passengers. The extensive use of the automobile has obviously had the effect on this railroad which it has had to a greater or less degree on all street railroads in the smaller cities of the state. Such average decrease in revenue passengers has been 200,000 in round numbers per year. For the year 1924 it is reasonable to suppose that the number of revenue passengers will not be greater than 2,225,000."

In 1923, the evidence showed, the railroad carried 3,127,573 revenue passengers; in 1922, 3,229,133; in 1921, 3,456,423, and in 1920, 3,793,856.

The memorandum continues: "The rates demanded by the company—ten cents cash and eight cents ticket—are plainly excessive. A flat cash rate of eight cents will pay an estimated return of 6.25 per cent, and such slight increase will not be likely to further diminish the number of revenue paying passengers to any appreciable extent. This company must, however, practice the utmost economy, and should investigate the practicability of one man safety-car operation on its Kingston City division as a means of additional future retrenchment."

The above announcement from Albany confirms the news published by The Freeman on Monday, when it was stated that unofficial information, apparently authentic, which had reached The Freeman indicated that Kingston's trolley riders would have to pay an eight cent fare this summer, and that the state public service commission would shortly hand down a decision to that effect. It is expected that the formal order will be prepared promptly and submitted to the public service commission by Howard Chipp, counsel for the railroad company, after it has been submitted to Corporation Counsel James Jenkins who has opposed the application.

It is expected that the formal order will be prepared promptly and submitted to the public service commission by Howard Chipp, counsel for the railroad company, after it has been submitted to Corporation Counsel James Jenkins who has opposed the application.

The eight cent fare goes into effect Monday. At that time fifteen tickets may be purchased for $1.20.

Young Atheist Kills Priest

Massachusetts Pastor Shot by Son to Whom He Was About to Administer Last Rites.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Dracut, Mass., June 5.—The Rev. Michael C. Gilbride, pastor of St. Mary's Church, Collinsville, was shot to death here today in the doorway of the home of John King, where he had gone to administer the last rites of the church to King's aged father.

Young King, who is described as an atheist, was arrested after a furious gun battle with the police in which he severely wounded Police Captain Petrie, of the Lowell police.

Another policeman was wounded in the eye.

"No priest can enter this house," young King told the pastor when he was summoned to attend the dying man by members of his family.

"A man is dying," the priest replied, "and my place is at his side." The clergyman started to brush the son aside and King raised his gun and fired. Father Gilbride fell across the threshold, dying almost instantly.

Captain Petrie and another officer found young King cowering in his garden. They called upon him to surrender and his reply was a volley of shots. The police captain dropped with a bullet in his side and his condition at the hospital is said to be critical. The other officer received a less severe wound in the eye. King then surrendered.

The elder King is not expected to survive the day.

Rotary to Loosen Shortcake Belts

Annual Pilgrimage to Yama Farms June 25, at Height of Season—Votes $250 to Boy Scouts.

Without having any set program or any specially designated speaker the Rotary Club managed to have a pretty good time at its luncheon on Wednesday and provide pleasure in anticipation for some time to come by deciding to make the annual trip to Yama Farms on June 25, when it is believed the strawberry season will be at its height. It will be a ladies' night, but no other guests will be taken, owing to the restricted number for whom sufficient strawberry shortcake can be provided. W. H. Hawk will be in charge of ticket selling and W. H. Niles will see that transportation is provided for the driverless.

Edwin Gregory of Tacoma, who left Kingston 33 years ago to start a furniture business in the woods and grow up with Tacoma, was a guest at the luncheon and told the men how sorry he was that he had not seen the opportunities of Kingston then as he saw them now. The location of Kingston is just right for a great industrial center and some day somebody will seize this opportunity and Kingston will grow.

It was decided to donate $250 to the Boy Scouts at once and there was some talk of giving an entertainment next fall for the benefit of that organization.

It is expected that the formal order will be prepared promptly and submitted to the public service commission by Howard Chipp, counsel for the railroad company, after it has been submitted to Corporation Counsel James Jenkins who has opposed the application.

Report Attacks Oil Leases; No Recommendation

Scathing Criticism by Senator Walsh of ex-Secretaries Fall and Denby—Leases Were Illegal, He Says.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, June 5.—Leasing of the Teapot Dome and Elks Hills naval oil reserves to Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny by ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and former Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby, cannot be justified legally, morally or from a good business standpoint, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, "unofficial prosecutor" of the house lands committee, charged today in a report to the senate.

Walsh's report, covering 36 printed pages, exhaustively reviewed the naval oil reserve scandal, but failed to outline definitely any legislative recommendation for tightening up the lease laws.

Fall, Sinclair, Doheny and Denby were savagely assailed in the report for the lease negotiations, which Walsh said were "reprehensible and tainted with suspicion."

The famous $100,000 loan by Doheny to Fall, the $25,000 loan by Sinclair to Fall, and Fall's use of a detachment of Marines to drive squatters off Teapot Dome were singled out by Walsh for bitter denunciation.

Pointing out that Fall entered the cabinet "in straightened financial circumstances, but in 1922 purchased property involving an expenditure of from $175,000 to $200,000, Walsh said, speaking specifically of the Doheny loan:

"Though the committee refrains from characterizing the transaction referred to, it does not hesitate to condemn it, as, in the last degree, reprehensible upon the part of all concerned in it. The essentially corrupt character of a loan made under such circumstances requires no comment. It would be impossible for an officer to accept a loan of such amount or perhaps of any amount under the circumstances without a sense of obligation to the lender, which unless his character was cast in heroic mold, would be revealed in subsequent official transactions with him. Its sinister import is appreciated when it is borne in mind that, without competitive bidding Doheny got from Fall, in the month of April following the loan, the contract for the construction of the tanks at Pearl Harbor and with it preference right to the lease of a large share of naval reserve number one (Elk Hills) to be followed, without competitive bidding, by a lease of the entire reserve, comprising over 30,000 acres, estimated to contain 250,000,000 barrels of oil, out of which, Doheny told the committee, he would be in bad luck if he did not make $100,000,000 profit."

Ordering of marines to Teapot Dome was described "as a perfectly outrageous use of the armed forces of the United States."

"The civil arm of the government was unquestionably equal to the emergency," Walsh said. "It is perfectly obvious that the procedure followed was pursued to avoid a judicial inquiry into the validity of the Sinclair lease."

Walsh attacked the legality of the leases, first, because the late President Harding was without authority to transfer control of the reserves from the navy to the interior department, second because the leasing acts of congress strictly prohibited either Fall or Denby from entering contracts for exchange of naval oil for storage tanks, and third because the leases were consummated without competitive bidding, as prescribed by law.

"This order, (executive) running counter as it did to the well understood policy of congress, merits more than a passing notice," he said. "Its illegality ought to have been recognized by everyone connected in its promulgation. The idea that the president may transfer powers reposed in or duties imposed upon one cabinet officer to another is intolerable and indefensible."

Not only was the order illegal, Walsh said, but he held that the law prohibited leasing without competitive bids.

Arguments of Fall and Denby that, because of drainage conditions, the leases were good business for the government were denied chiefly in connection with the Sinclair contract. Walsh said that even with a quarter of the oil drained away there would have been 22,000,000 barrels left in the ground.

"Your committee cannot believe that a lease under which the government receives 6 per cent of the oil in the ground and the lessee 94 per cent can be just to the government," said Walsh. "Had the lease been awarded upon competitive bidding, there would have been no occasion to inquire whether they are or are not fair to the government. The omission to invite competition, casts a suspicion on the transactions."

Walsh also assailed leases in the Buena Vista, California, reserve and sections 16 and 36 in the Elk Hills reserve to the Standard Oil Company of California.

WHERE THE RIVER SHANNON FLOWS

Project on Foot to Harness Historic Irish Stream.

Washington.—"The Shannon river, which so long has figured in the romances of the imaginative Irish, will soon be connected with an industrial romance of that country. If the great engineering project for harnessing its waters, reported to be in progress, is put into operation," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Delicate shamrock blooms and other flowers nod their pretty heads by the side of its foaming weir and its bawling rapids. They give a colorful background to stories concerning the fairies who still play pranks upon the inhabitants in its vicinity, the miraculous cures of the numerous holy wells, and the potency of the wishing wells near its banks.

Longest in Irish Free State.

"Statistically speaking, the Shannon is the largest and longest river in the new Irish Free State, measures 240 miles in length and is eight miles wide at its mouth. During its course it drops 150 feet from the foot of the Cullinagh mountains, where it rises, to the sea—the last feature being the source of its power to turn the wheels of industry.

"From Loop Head and Kerry Head, the twin capes at its entrance to the sea, it is navigable for all classes of ships for 30 miles, or up to its junction with the Fergus river and a considerable world navy might be hidden within its estuary, which in some places widens out to ten miles. Once, many years ago, the town of Limerick at the head of navigation on the Shannon, had fond aspirations of being the greatest port in Ireland because ships from America could sail up the river and dock at her wharves, but a turn in the tide of affairs of the island caused the city to wither away, and now few boats except excursion steamers and pleasure craft drop their gangplanks along Limerick's waterfront.

"Down through Lough Allen, near the northwestern coast of Ireland out into the central portion of the country and back again to the southwest, the river flows, measuring off a portion of land very similar in shape to Wales, about the same size and in a corresponding location with reference to Ireland that Wales bears to England. It has been canalized and made navigable for small vessels as far as Lough Allen near its source; the Grand and Royal canals connect it with Dublin, the Ulster canal with Belfast. Its volume is obtained from a catchment basin of 4,544 square miles.

Divides Ireland Historically.

"Historically speaking, it has for a thousand or more years been the dividing line between eastern Ireland, which was overrun at various times by the Danes and the English, and western Ireland, which is Irish through and through and where Gaelic is still the language of the people.

"But the beautiful fertile valley, with its green, calm, lush meadows seems fitter for a more peaceful life than history has hitherto accorded it. The Danes pushed their boats up to the head of navigation at Limerick in the Ninth century, and managed to throw a bridge across the river. This was almost the only way of getting across the river barrier with the exception of the ford at Athlone just below Lough Ree.

"Brian Boru led his forces against the Danes and drove them out after a struggle which romantically colors the pages of Irish history, but the Normans came just a little while later, took Limerick and erected a great round-towered castle from which they might clinch their hold upon the country. Scarcely a century passed that did not know bloody struggles along the peaceful river. Edward Bruce captured the Norman castle in 1316, and Hugh O'Neill held it for six months against one of the greatest of Cromwell's generals. The venerable old castle, with its great drumlike towers and walls ten feet thick, stands by the riverside today.

"The portion of the river just above Limerick is known as the most beautiful, and has been dubbed by happy fishermen the 'Cotopaxi of Irish anglers.' Its salmon and trout fishing are famous enough to make devotees careen their rods, poles, and flies in retrospect over the hours they spent at Carrick-on-Shannon, Athlone, Killahee, or Castletown."

Colony of Mice on Island Proves Mystery

Balt Lake City.—Carrington Island, a small piece of land on the Great Salt Lake, on which there is an abundant supply of roofing slate, is infested with mice, according to E. M. F. Taylor of the United States land office here.

A recent visit to the island by Mr. Taylor for survey purposes brought out the tale of the rodents.

There is no fresh water and no other sign of life on the island except the mice, and how they manage to survive is a mystery.

New Ventilating Plan for Granary

System Recently Devised Prevents Heat Damage to Grain in Storage.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A system of ventilating farm bins that prevents heat damage to stored grain has been devised by the United States Department of Agriculture. The system involves the use of wood and wire ventilators that can be constructed on the farm at a cost of about $10 to equip a bin of 1,000 bushels capacity.

The monetary loss from damaged grain during the past few years is estimated at around $2,000,000 a year, the department says. During a six-months period 4 1/2 per cent of the receipts at Kansas City market graded one or more grades lower on account of heat damage, it is pointed out.

Avoid Wheat Damage.

Department investigators show that much of the damage to wheat could be avoided by better systems of farm storage, and that such farm storage

Ventilated Wheat Bin, Giving Views of Ventilators in Position.

Improvement is essential to the success of the methods of harvesting and handling the crop now practiced by many farmers. These methods of harvesting and handling grain facilitate time and lessen expense, but much of the early threshed wheat whether harvested with a Combine harvester or threshed from the bundles is not in condition for safe storage, the department says.

The grain must be fully ripe and dry when threshed if it is to be stored safely. Its storage condition is not safe if threshed before it is quite ripe, if ripened prematurely and made tough by heavy dew or rain, or when threshed from either bundles or stacks while wet from recent rain, although dry before the rain came. Weather at harvesting and threshing time is another important factor.

Arrangement of Ventilation.

A series of ventilators is used in the department's new system. Each ventilator consists of two boards 4 to 6 inches wide and long enough to reach across the bin or to reach from the bottom to the top of the bin as shown in the illustrations. These boards are set on edge 4 inches apart and cleats 6 inches long are mortised in at the top, and other cleats nailed across the bottom. Strips of screen wire 6 inches wide and as long as the boards are nailed across the top and bottom. The ventilators placed across the bin connect with openings in the sides of the bin, and those standing upright rest at the bottom on horizontal ventilators, and extend above the wheat at the top. In all cases the ventilators should be placed not more than three feet apart.

Field tests of the ventilating system were made last year with good results. In one instance the wheat had a moisture content of 16 per cent when it went into the ventilated bin and at the end of 74 days came out with a moisture content of only 14.3 per cent. Full details regarding the construction of the ventilators and the results of the department's field tests and laboratory experiments may be had upon application to the department at Washington, D. C. Ask for mimeographed circular entitled "Ventilated Farm Grain Bins," published by the bureau of agricultural economics.

Japan's Holy Mountain

A number of reasons enter into the fact that Fuji San is called "the holy mountain of Japan." Its perfection of beauty, its supposedly miraculous creation and the fact that on its slopes are many shrines cause thousands of pilgrims to hold the mountain in reverence and to visit it annually.

A new Victor Record by Caruso

It was the Victor Company's privilege to issue records by Caruso at frequent intervals during the life of the great tenor. A few have been issued since his death and a number still remain for later presentation to the public. We believe this week's announcement of new records, headed as it is by a Caruso record, will be an occasion in the life of every music-lover, and the record itself a monument to a great artist who put so much of himself into his Victor Records that he said "My Victor Records shall be my biography."

Out tomorrow New Victor Records

Red Seal Records

Number	Price
[Scordame (Foggy Me) (Foggy) Neapolitan] Enrico Caruso	1007 $1.50
[Senza Niscuno (Foggy) (De Carlo) Neapolitan] Enrico Caruso
[On the Banks of the Wabash (Dramatic) Orville Harrold	1014 1.50
[Way Down in Old Indiana (Dramatic) Orville Harrold
[Mazurka (in Chopin's Minor) (Chopin) Sergei Rachmaninoff	1008 1.50
[Were I a Bird (Hensch) Sergei Rachmaninoff

To do honor to his native state of Indiana, which has just made "On the Banks of the Wabash" its official song, Harrold has recorded these two numbers. The first is practically world-known. It was never presented better than on this record.

A charmingly rhythmic Chopin mazurka, played with true sensitivity to its peculiar quality; and a record of Hensch's salon-piece, exhibiting at their finest many of the characteristics of Rachmaninoff's touch and tone.

Concert Songs and Instrumental

[In mezo al mar (Out Seaward) Dusolina Giannini	45413 1.00
[Fa la nana babin (Rock-a-bye, Baby Mine) Dusolina Giannini
[Robert Bruce—Part I Arthur Pryor's Band	19291 .75
[Robert Bruce—Part II Arthur Pryor's Band

First Victor Record by the young soprano who, substituting one night at a Schola Cantorum concert, won the next day famous. A cool, lyric voice, and lovely Italian songs. One of the finest records you ever have heard.

A "medley overture" based on familiar and beloved Scotch melodies, ingeniously wrought together and played with great variety of musical color and expression. Band records that demonstrate the perfection attained in Victor recording.

Light Vocal Selections

[Cheer Up the Old Folks at Home Peerless Quartet	19333 .75
[You Didn't Want Me When I Wanted You Lewis James

A bright and melodious quartet number, and a tenor waltz song with a unique interlude, finely and robustly sung. The two together make a most entertaining record of popular music.

Dance Records

[Spain—Tango Fox Trot Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra	19330 .75
[Mr. Radio Man—Fox Trot Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra
[Jealous—Fox Trot with vocal refrain International Novelty Orch.	19332 .75
[Waitin' Around Garber-Davis Orchestra
[Bringin' Home the Bacon—Fox Trot The Virginians	19334 .75
[Shine—Fox Trot The Virginians

Whiteman's playing and Victor recording—an irresistible combination for dance lovers. Brilliant records, exhibiting new and surprising uses of orchestral color.

The first number is in fine, easy, natural style. The second is a fitting companion piece, and is suitable either for the straight fox trot, or the new steps. Choose which you will, you dance your best to Victor Records.

Fine examples of the "post-jazz" fox trot, by masters of the art, and transferred to Victor Records by masters in the art of recording.

Directoire Again
on Fashion SheetInfluence of Former Mode Demands Attention of Careful Dressers.

The influence of the directoire period upon the fashions of the hour has been the cause of not a little discussion. For weeks at the beginning of the season, writes a fashion correspondent in the Boston Globe, one heard rumors that this style would be an important factor. Assertions as to its possible vogue were made and also there were predictions that it could not succeed.

As a style in itself it cannot be said to have achieved a conspicuous position, but as an influence it may be taken seriously. It is in details that it most often appears. The high crown of a hat, the slight indication of a waistline placed a bit above that of the natural figure and the high stock and flared jacket may all be traced back to the modes of this era.

Emphasizing a tendency to directoire lines and yet absolutely in keeping with the style trend of the moment is an attractive model, a smart little affair of navy twill which relieves its slim severity by the addition of a frill of cream lace and a tie of black satin. Fine soutache braiding is utilized with effective results to accent the raised waistline and to form a border around the skirt. Black bone buttons and bound buttonholes are other points of interest, for in the present fashions few dresses are considered a success unless somewhere about them are distributed a few buttons. It makes no difference whether they are large or small or whether they have any definite purpose other than to provide a bit of novel decoration.

Pink and Coral Colors
Are in Milady's Favor

At the moment, says a fashion authority, there is no lessening in the popularity of pink. In fact, if anything, it is more in demand than ever and in a recent showing of frocks for summer wear the models displayed ran the gamut of pink tints.

It was also of decided interest to those who follow closely in the footsteps of fashion to discover that each gown was developed in chiffon. Many layers went into the making of these frocks which relied for charm on their distinctive lines and the absence of any detail that would detract from the exquisite simplicity.

In several models there was a tendency toward ombre and two-toned effects, while others were given an accent by the large flower, usually in a much darker tone, which was placed at the waistline either in front or a little to one side.

Pink chiffon as a background for silver embroidery, pink crepe with designs of pearls and crystals and delicate apricot tinted satin with a touch of French blue are seen again and again. A significant note is that these frocks are worn by older women as well as by debutantes.

Many of these models have the cape back and the cleverly draped sash that distinguish the modes of this season.

Jabots Are in Favor
for Tailored Suits

Jabots are just the thing to wear with the new tailored suits. Colored georgette, of whatever color is becoming to you, is the material used. Cut a seven-inch strip of the georgette. Use one width of the material, as jabots are very full. Then cut two hands each four inches wide. Have the edges pleated and the strips pleated. Gather the wide piece at the top edge. Sew it to a piece of thin silk three inches wide and twelve inches long. Gather the top edge of one of the narrower strips. Stitch it around the silk band so that the top of this strip is one inch under and above the bottom edge of the first strip. Place the other strip under the second. Sew small beads to the edges of the strips. If you want the jabot longer add one or two more strips.

In illustration of how Mr. Coolidge acquired the nickname of "Cautious Cal," it is amusingly related that a feminine member of the official circle in Washington, knowing that she was to sit by him at a dinner party, wagered a pair of gloves that, in spite of his reputation as a man of few words, she would succeed in engaging him in an animated conversation. So confident was she of her ability to do this that as soon as they were seated she announced: "Mr. President, this is the first time I have had the honor of sitting next to a man occupying such a high office. I am thrilled beyond words, yet, do you know, I bet one of my friends that I could tempt you into an animated conversation during dinner." "You lose," said "Cautious Cal," as he adjusted his napkin and took up a soup spoon. She had made the mistake at the outset of putting him on his guard against questions bearing on political issues.

OUR UNDERPAID TEACHERS.

American colleges and schools are not all that they might be, in the view of Andre Morize, French professor at Harvard University. One feature of our educational system that staggers Prof. Morize is "the incongruous mixing whereby economics, ice-cream making, millinery, with a little dash of French literature, all thrown together, will lead one to a bachelor of arts degree." This implies an incredibly go-as-you-please system, but there are other criticisms less suggestive of mere caricature and more likely to be regarded as well based by reflecting observers. It is to be expected that a teacher from France, which is not a sporting nation in the sense that America and England are, would be scandalized by the time and energy devoted to athletics as well as by the high salaries paid to professional coaches, and the professor's objections along this line may be largely discounted.

What will not be discounted and will receive attention is Prof. Morize's criticism of the under-payment of teachers in colleges, and especially in high schools and normal schools. It is worth while to reflect upon his assertion that, although America is much richer than France, it does not pay its teachers so well. Prof. Morize thinks we spend too much on buildings and equipment and seems to attach unflattering significance to the fact that it is easier for us to raise money for brick and mortar than for such salaries as will secure the best teachers. Fortunately the intelligent public is aware of this. The same criticism has already been made by Americans and the under-payment of teachers is a subject that has been much agitated.

AN INHERENT RIGHT.

That judges are fallible, that their decisions are not sacrosanct and above criticism in a democratic country, is made clear by the not infrequent 5 to 4 decisions of the United States Supreme Court itself as well as by the frequent reversal of the decisions of a lower court by a higher. Merely to question a court's decision, therefore, is not to attack the courts as an institution and is an inherent right of free citizens. In a recent public utterance this was frankly acknowledged by Judge James Gay Gordon, who is quoted as saying: "The right to choose carries with it the right to reject—the right to approve, the right to condemn. No fit official will resent the just inquiry of the constituents whose commission gives him official life. In this day of democracy of all others, confidence in the judiciary will not be restored, if indeed it has been in any degree lost, or maintained if it still subsists, by resisting, resenting or ignoring the criticism by the people of their judiciary administration."

Nor will anything be gained by "resisting, resenting or ignoring" the people's criticism of the officers of their government when these have made such criticism inevitable. At present there is widely noticeable a tendency to "resent" and especially to "ignore" the findings and the corruptions uncovered by investigating committees at Washington with public sentiment behind them, and even to condemn the investigators because of some of their methods. But the people understand that this hue and cry is not in the country's interests and is merely a part of the game of partisan politics.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

YOUR MOST IMPORTANT ORGAN.

There have been many arguments about which is the most important organ in the body.

One will maintain that the brain is the most important because it guides everything we do, whether those movements are conscious movements, such as breathing, or the beating of the heart, an unconscious movement.

This is true of course.

Another will argue that the kidneys are the most important as they separate out harmful substances from the blood, which if retained would cause death in a short time.

And still another will consider the heart the most important because it is the force behind the flow of blood throughout the body, thus maintaining the tissues and supplying the organs with materials from which to make the juices which are absolutely essential to life.

Now you have to get along with the brain, kidneys, and heart with which you were born.

You keep your brain busy trying to make a living. Your kidneys look after themselves pretty well, unless you eat too much.

What about your heart?

Did you ever realize that the one pump your heart gives each few ounces of blood to 50 times a minute, has to send that blood all the way around your body and back again.

Just as the blood leaves the heart it enters the huge arteries with their elastic walls. These walls allow the blood to distend them.

When these walls come back to normal again they push the blood onward.

This is of course some help to the heart, and about all it gets.

This push out of blood from the heart is what you feel when you put your fingers on the "pulse" at the wrist.

The further away from the heart the blood is traveling the less powerful is the pulse or beat that you can feel.

And what about the blood coming back?

Does it draw the blood back by suction?

Not by any means. The blood has to travel all the way back through the veins just by the power it receives with its first push out by the heart.

The veins help it, not by pushing the blood along, because they haven't that power, but having valves they prevent the blood flowing back, as it might otherwise do.

And so when I suggest that you take a few minutes exercise daily such as a walk, or a run at a slow pace, you can see that by strengthening up your heart muscle you are strengthening up your most vital organ.

There's no other way of doing it. You may not be able to do much for your brain by care. Your kidneys react to the kind of food you eat. But your heart—your most important organ—depends upon the actual activity of your body for its strength.

One in Every 500 Goes to Jail

One person in every 500 in the United States is locked up in a jail or penitentiary.

This startling assertion was made by A. W. Frye, supreme commander of the Macabees in an address at Chicago on the Automobile Caravan campaign of the fraternal society which has as its object the development of fraternalism and better citizenship throughout the nation.

"There are about 150,000 convicted criminals in America, government statistics show," said Mr. Frye. "The number of persons in the United States above 15 years of age is 75,000,000. There is one person in jail for every 140 families in this country."

This does not mean that one family in every 140 produces a criminal. Some produce several.

"We proceed about our daily business in the United States to the sound of the policeman's whistle and the patrol wagon's gong. In New York city, one person in every 16 gets his name on a court record of some sort or has his name called out in court every year. The chances of being injured by crime in America are greater than in any other civilized country."

"Eighty per cent of our criminals were neglected or exploited in their childhood. Improvement of the living conditions of underprivileged children throughout the country is of vital importance. The work of the Americanization movement of the Macabees among the children of America in teaching patriotism and developing a greater respect for law and national traditions is an effective force in the campaign for better citizenship."

HIGH WOODS.

High Woods, June 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Ackerman and Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Felten attended the auction on S. Myers's farm in West Saugerties last Tuesday.

Mr. Schwartz's family were at their cottage here for the week end. The Dees and Tirschard families have returned to their homes here, for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Aken, Mrs. Rachel J. Conyes, Antoni Ponjent of New York and Sylvester Weeks of Kingston called on Mary J. Carle and Mrs. Amanda J. Felten on Decoration Day.

Mrs. Lucinda Shader of Saugerties is visiting relatives here.

Aubrey Whitely and family of Brooklyn were at their home here a few days last week.

The Rev. G. W. Gulick of Ulster Park, a former pastor, was a caller in this place Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Miller spent the week end at her mother's, Mrs. Ellen Kiersted.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Longendyke and Mary A. France were guests at Wilson Ackerman's Sunday.

An epidemic of summer grip is in this place.

The Rev. Willis G. Hoekje filled the pulpit here Sunday and administered the Lord's Supper. His excellent sermon was based on 2 Timothy, 2:8. The Rev. J. B. Steketee is to be here next Sunday at 1:30, standard time.

Mr. and Mrs. Berg and three daughters, Agnes, Lillian and Elmer, of Brooklyn, spent the week end at Mr. Wilren's. Miss Lillian remained with her aunt a few days.

Mrs. L. Donaway and son, John, have gone to New York to spend a few days.

John Itten is having a porch built on his house. Ralph Westphal is the carpenter.

The Rev. William Vander Borgh, who declined the call to the pastorate here, has accepted one at Three Bridges, N. J.

Mrs. Hommel and son and Mrs. Delia Witherwax of Cementon called at Sauley E. Felten's Sunday.

IDEAL PARK.

Ideal Park, June 4.—Among the holiday and week-end visitors at Ideal Park were the following: Dr. and Mrs. Baylor of Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. John Horan and son of Brooklyn, Mr. and Mrs. John Gorman and several friends of New York, William Van Etten and family, M. E. Powley and family, E. E. Matthews and family, Mrs. George Tobey, Miss Edith Case and friend, Mrs. Martin and the Misses Martin, all of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Post of Philadelphia and Charles Keley and friend of Kingston.

Change Owners

The offices of I. Paradies of 17-19 Railroad avenue, this city, and 799 Broadway, New York city, have for the month of May closed some of the best country properties in the history of his business, which has been established for the past 17 years. The month's transfers include the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Holmes, owners of the 35 acre poultry and boarding house farm located at Creek Locks, have sold their property to William and Rose Blumbers of 403 Kosciuszko street, Brooklyn. The farm was sold together with about 500 White Leghorn hens. Everything about the property is included in the sale. Arrangements have been made to make extensive modern improvements.

Mrs. Dorothy Hassey, who for some time past has been owner of the handsome property located at Flatbush, on the Saugerties-Kingston state road, to Mr. and Mrs. William O. Jones of 12 Crown street, Bloomfield, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Jones have been owners of several properties in and about the county and favor this section far more than New Jersey. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will make a few more improvements and will use it for their home as well as for a summer boarding house. They have taken possession. Mrs. Hassey will reside in Beverly, N. J.

Minnie Berglund of Whiteport has deeded her property to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spindler of LeFevre Falls. The property includes a 7 room house located on the main road leading from Whiteport to Maple Hill.

Mrs. Dr. E. J. Faulk, owner of a nicely located place at Tillson, has sold her property to John Kurz of Little Ferry, N. J. Mr. Kurz has moved in and has several persons working putting in improvements on the place. This property is located on the state road leading from Tillson to Perrine's Bridge.

Miss Pearl De Force, through her lawyer and broker, Paradies, has sold her ideal farm at Tillson to Schroeder Brothers of Brooklyn. The place is one of the best located farms in that section and contains about 12 acres, which will be converted into a poultry farm. Otto Schroeder is expert in that line, having written a great number of articles for the poultry journals and taken a number of prizes. Several large-poultry houses will be built and other improvements made to the farm. Miss De Force, who resides in Cleveland, Ohio, had to dispose of the farm, as it was a great burden for her to handle since the death of her father a few years ago.

The general store belonging to William S. Martin of Clintondale was purchased by William N. Kelly of Saugerties Lake, N. Y. Mr. Kelly took possession of the business and has moved his family there. The business was established 20 years ago by Mr. Martin. The store is widely known throughout the southern part of Ulster county. Mr. Martin will retire from business.

WEST SAUGERTIES.

West Saugerties, June 4.—Mrs. Richter and Mrs. Earl Minkler of Saugerties spent Wednesday of last week with their mother, Mrs. Charles E. Hommel.

Mrs. Kelly of Albany is here running her ice cream parlor. John Cole and family of Kingston spent Decoration Day and the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Cole.

Mrs. Charles Hommel of Saugerties spent a few days last week with her sister, Mrs. Orville Carn.

The Solfeisch family of Bergen, N. J., spent the holidays at their residence here.

The Elks House has been leased by Mrs. Harrington of New York from Purcell and Curtis for the summer.

Mrs. Weirback, who was injured in Kingston by an auto, is slowly recovering at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Cordes.

David Schönmaker and family of Saugerties spent Sunday with the family of his son, Frank. Mrs. Herman Pennink received a cablegram from Holland announcing the death of her father. She has the sincere sympathy of her neighbors.

Henry Engelman, wife and two sons of West New York, were week-end guests of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cordes.

Mr. Mendoza, wife and two guests of Brooklyn are occupying their residence here.

Mrs. Mellon had quite a household of guests over the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. Egnor and Mrs. Edward Hommel and son, Paul, spent Sunday in Kiskatom.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Rogers of Verona, N. J., were guests of his brother, Jacob's family for a few days.

Mrs. Elliot of Mountain Stream House had a large number of guests during the holidays. Thelma Minkler was her helper.

Henry Burton and Peter Hommel were going fishing on Sunday when another car ran into theirs causing a severe cut on his arm, which had to be dressed by a doctor.

Jacob Rogers, Mr. Bennink and Mr. Ledecke have been spraying trees in their orchards.

Henry Burton's family have moved into one of Mr. Rogers's houses. Religious service in the chapel on Sunday afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Moot.

School superintendent, Miss Burnett, visited our school on Monday. She advised Thelma Minkler and Thomas Freedom to attend the spelling contest in Saugerties on Thursday.

The row of lilacs in front of S. P. Cole's have been admired by many people passing the place.

A Queer Creature.

One of the queerest creatures imaginable in the midwife toad. The female lays her eggs in long streamers, which the male collects and wraps around his legs. He carries them about in this way until they hatch into tadpoles.

Musical Comedy To Rehearse Here

Ed. Doremus, Well Known Kingston Man, to Take Prominent Part in "The Toonerville Trolley."

"The Toonerville Trolley," a musical comedy, will rehearse at the Kingston Opera House for two weeks, beginning Monday, before starting on tour under the management of the Withers Company.

Ed. Doremus, formerly of this city, who owns and operates a farm at Kyserike in addition to prominent activity in connection with well known stage productions, will take a prominent part in "The Toonerville Trolley." Mr. Doremus has been acting manager for the Withers Company for a number of seasons.

"The Toonerville Trolley" is an adaptation from Fontaine Fox's well known newspaper cartoon series of that name.

Two large trucks filled with special scenery and effects which will be used in the production when it goes on tour next season have arrived at the opera house.

ALLABEN.

Allaben, June 4.—Miss Clementine LaFerty has returned to her home from New York, where she is taking treatments, and expects to go back in two weeks again.

Mr. and Mrs. Leven Searle and daughter, Margaret, of Kingston, were the week-end guests at the Allaben Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Olmstead, Esq. Olmstead and Stella Colwell were in Kingston last Sunday evening.

Mrs. Ira Olmstead is officiating at the Shandaken post office this week. The Christian Endeavor are holding a social in the Shandaken M. E. Church hall Tuesday evening.

Miss Mabel M. Van Keuren is returning to Newark this week, after spending a short vacation at her home.

R. F. Pearsall of New York city and Miss Elizabeth Pearsall of Peekskill were guests at their home the week-end.

Little Mabel and Watson Van Keuren of Fox Hollow, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Van Keuren last Sunday.

Clarence Peck and Miss Ruth Lewis of Poughkeepsie were guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Peck in Fox Hollow last Sunday.

Charles E. Wood of Shandaken is painting his residence. Russel Miller is doing the work.

Miss Caroline Van Keuren of Kingston was an Allaben visitor last Sunday.

Daniel Misner, who has been quite ill, is recovering.

There was a large attendance at the dance at Shandegnon Hall last Saturday evening. All those who attended were very much pleased with the orchestra from Delhi. They will have another dance June 14th.

Mrs. E. H. Dickson, Edward and Betty Dickson of Arena were Allaben visitors last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Sach are expecting to move in the Griffin House. Part of it is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Redmond.

Miss Margaret Tricker is improving and painting the Commissary Hotel, she recently purchased of the Ulen Company.

Benjamin Gulnick, who is employed with the Standard Oil Company in Kingston, was at his home the week-end. He expects to move to Kingston very soon on Crane street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kaufman of Saugerties were guests at the Allaben Hotel last Saturday.

One Department Awake

Some departments of the government may be said, with justice, to fall asleep occasionally on the job, but one Detroit housewife is willing to testify to the wide-awakeness of the United States bureau of animal industry. The housewife had ordered a set of dishes from London, England, and long before their arrival was the recipient of a letter from the bureau stating a case of goods, packed in straw and excelsior had been consigned to her and adding that, because of the danger of importing germs of the hoof-and-mouth disease into the country, the straw must be destroyed. However, the bureau heads did not trust to the housewife's discretion in burning the packing. She was requested to notify the local bureau of the consignment's arrival, whereupon an inspector would call to see personally to the destruction of the straw.—Detroit Free Press.

Farming in Portugal

Portugal will aid its agriculture by supplying farmers with implements and fertilizers and instruction in how to use them. The scheme, as announced by Doctor Oliveira of the Banco Agricola of Lisbon, involves teaching the unskilled farmer to get the most possible from his soil by means of intensive cultivation. The government will supply the necessary agricultural machinery and will also designate one or more directors who will have the supervision of the work undertaken. There is no intention to profit at the expense of the farmer, it is announced, and all profits gained by the intensive and systematic cultivation practiced will revert to the owner. There is a shortage of animal power in the country districts and this fact, it is thought, will stimulate the demand for tractors.

To Fit the Price

A Topeka physician prescribed orthoform for a patient. This is a powerful medicine in powdered form for use in serious throat infections. The physician didn't say how much to get or intimate what the cost might be. The man of the house walked into a drug store.

"Want some orthoform," he said. "All right, how much of it?" asked the druggist.

"What does it cost?" "Sixty-four dollars a pound."

"Gimme two drams."—Kansas City Star.

Not Unusual to Find*Humor Among Thieves

Criminals have almost invariably a sense of humor that proves their humanity, says G. S. Dougherty in the Saturday Evening Post. They especially relish a laugh when it is on themselves.

A rope ladder thief had successfully finished one of his difficult jobs. Fastening a rope ladder to a chimney on a roof he had to climb down to a window below, force an entrance, climb up with his loot and make his getaway.

Coming out of the door he saw his shadow in the yard and was so nervous that he fired at it, thereby bringing about his arrest. A mishap of that kind will cause great mirth in criminal circles.

A pickpocket worked all summer without an accident. Every week he sent a good proportion of his money home to his sister and mother. Coming home himself, after warm greetings, he wanted to know what had been done with the money.

"Why, Jim, I'll tell you," said the sister, hesitating a little. "You're in such a dangerous business that we often feel worried about you, so we gave the money to buy a stained glass window in the church."

After his arrest, a skillful counterfeiter told me how his undoing came about. He had been a sign painter and was decidedly artistic and skillful. Coming to New York he took a downtown office, painted "Real Estate" on the door, and used it as a workshop for painting imitation banknotes.

He said that though it took no more time or work to imitate a $100 bill than a $20, he had to make five $200 to get change for $100, because the $20 bills were more easily passed.

It was a $100 counterfeit that led to his downfall. Finishing it late one afternoon, he started for home, but stopped in a lower West side saloon to buy a drink and a bottle of whisky. Laying his $100 imitation banknote on the bar, it came in contact with a little spilled whisky and the colors ran, leading to his arrest.

Some years later I saw him in a penitentiary and said, "Well, Emanuel, I see you're still working at the old line." He was playing a brush, whitewashing a prison wall.

NATIONAL
STERLING SILVER WEEK
JUNE 2-7.*When You were a Bride

YOU still remember the delicious thrill of anticipation every time a package arrived. Another gift! How eager you were to open it.

All the gifts were lovely, of course,—but truthfully, wasn't there a real thrill when you removed all the wrappings and found it Silver?

And when it was silver—remember, the first thing you did, not openly to be sure, but just the same, you did—first thing you did was to look for the Sterling mark. When it was there you knew it was real. Your joy was complete.

Brides are the same to-day. They do want Silver—and yes—they still look for the Sterling mark. Make the bride's joy complete. Give her Silver—but it must be Sterling.

Confer with your Jeweler concerning your gift to the June Bride or the Girl Graduate. He will show you an infinite variety of designs specially exhibited during Sterling Silver Week.

CALLS ON FLOWERS

"So here you are, Bloodroot," said Billie Brownie to the Bloodroot flowers.

"Here we are," they whispered, in their flower fashion. "It's warm now and we feel like putting our white heads forth and seeing the world."

"When we first came our leaves saw that we did not catch cold. They wound themselves around us, for the only overcoats we have are our leaves."

"You know we have an orange-red sap in our stems and in olden times the Indians used this for war paint and for decorating themselves for great festivals."

"That is why we have the name of Bloodroot."

"Oh, I'm so glad to know," said Billie Brownie.

"We come out during the day, but by night we're all tired out."

Billie Brownie called on some Bluets next.

"You seem to be white to me," said Billie Brownie, "and yet you tell me your name is Blue."

"Yes," the little Bluets said, "we have the family name of Blue."

"Seeing us as you do now it is no wonder you are surprised at our name. You see us all over this field and not one of us seems to be blue."

"But much earlier we were blue."

"Yes, when first we peep about to look at the springtime we are of a light shade of blue, but after we've been out for a while our color changes to white and the later ones you see are always white."

"Well, I'm glad to know that," said Billie Brownie, "for it is something that has always puzzled me."

Then he called on the Rue Anemone flowers and they talked to him in their sweet, gentle way, and as they talked they moved their heads about and their perfume and sweetness seemed to fill the whole air.

He called on the Hepatica flowers, but most of the family were gone. It was late for them, as they had arrived early.

"We have to come early," said a few flowers still blooming where the spring was very late. "We can't keep from getting started when there is the slightest thought of springtime being near. That is why we come when spring is scarcely here."

"We notice you are going all about, Billie Brownie."

"Yes," said Billie Brownie, "for in many places all of the spring flowers have gone. I've come where the season is a good deal later so I could see you all around here."

The Hepatica flowers smiled at Billie Brownie. He loved their beautiful blue faces and he loved them, too, for their devotion to the woods and their loyalty to the brown leaves about them.

The brown leaves had kept the plants warm all through the winter and had given the hepatica flowers good nourishment and the hepatica flowers had not forgotten their first friends.

They did not look down upon them now that they were all dressed in their beautiful blue frocks, and looked so much better. No, they were loyal and true.

He called on the Wild Ginger flowers, with their funny little brown faces so close to the earth and their leaves shaped like hearts and very woolly and dark green in color.

He said good-afternoon to the Dutchman's Breeches as he went through some rocky parts of the woods and the yellow Marsh Marigold flowers, so bright, bright a yellow.

And as he went by Jack-in-the-pulpit, Jack tried to stop him and preach his little sermon, but Billie Brownie said:

"Not today, Jack; another time. I've still promised to call on the Yellow Violets and the Purple Violets and the Star flowers."

Also Had His Troubles

Grandmother—My dear boy, you're grown to be the living image of your father. You have your father's eyes, you have his nose, you have his mouth, and—

Jimmy (sloozily)—Yes, and I have his trousers, too.

She Knew

A visitor said to a little girl, "And what will you do, my dear, when you are as big as your mother?"

"Diet," said the mother child.

He danced until midnight. Ate a hearty lunch at 1. Retired at 1:30. Was in distress until 2:30. Took a dose of ROYAL DIGESTO at 2:30. Fell asleep at 2:33. Alarm clock sounded at 3 a. m. Got up feeling fine. On sale at Connolly Drug Co., Kingston Central Pharmacy, Ten Broeck Drug Store, McBride's Drug Stores.—Advertisement.

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union)

And he who shuts Love out, in turn shall be shut out from Love, and on her threshold lie howling in outer darkness. Nor for this was common clay taken from the common earth, molded by God, and tempered with the tears of angels to the perfect shape of man.

MEATS FOR THE FAMILY

Chicken is so well liked that a different way of cooking this favorite meat will be welcomed.

Chicken en Casserole.—Cut into joints a large fat fowl or two small ones, removing as many of the bones as possible.

Put two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, pork fat or butter into a frying pan; as soon as it is hot lay in a few pieces of chicken at a time, turning often until it is well-sealed through but not brown. Take from the pan and add more chicken until all is partly cooked, adding more butter or oil as needed. Put three tablespoonfuls of butter into the pan where the chicken was cooked, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and when well blended turn in three cupfuls of veal stock, or chicken stock made from the bones and trimmings. Scalding the feet of a fowl, removing the skin, then adding the feet to the bones will give the gelatin to the soup which is so desirable. Add a little onion and carrot for seasoning, add the chicken and cover the casserole, baking an hour or more, depending upon the age of the fowl. A spoonful of any good-flavored fruit juice may be added to give additional flavor if desired. Serve en casserole.

Baked Chops With Vegetables.—Slice potatoes, using as many as the family usually consumes. Arrange in a large, shallow baking pan, cover with a thin layer of sliced onions, add salt and pepper to season and cover the top with a pork chop for each serving. Season the chops well and bake in a hot oven. When the tops of the chops are brown turn them so that they will be well browned on both sides. Serve from the baking dish. This will also make a substantial meal with a light dessert and a salad if desired.

The Hepatica flowers smiled at Billie Brownie. He loved their beautiful blue faces and he loved them, too, for their devotion to the woods and their loyalty to the brown leaves about them.

The brown leaves had kept the plants warm all through the winter and had given the hepatica flowers good nourishment and the hepatica flowers had not forgotten their first friends.

They did not look down upon them now that they were all dressed in their beautiful blue frocks, and looked so much better. No, they were loyal and true.

He called on the Wild Ginger flowers, with their funny little brown faces so close to the earth and their leaves shaped like hearts and very woolly and dark green in color.

He said good-afternoon to the Dutchman's Breeches as he went through some rocky parts of the woods and the yellow Marsh Marigold flowers, so bright, bright a yellow.

And as he went by Jack-in-the-pulpit, Jack tried to stop him and preach his little sermon, but Billie Brownie said:

"Not today, Jack; another time. I've still promised to call on the Yellow Violets and the Purple Violets and the Star flowers."

Also Had His Troubles

Grandmother—My dear boy, you're grown to be the living image of your father. You have your father's eyes, you have his nose, you have his mouth, and—

Jimmy (sloozily)—Yes, and I have his trousers, too.

She Knew

A visitor said to a little girl, "And what will you do, my dear, when you are as big as your mother?"

"Diet," said the mother child.

Amazing New Spanish Cream Makes Wrinkles Go in Ten Minutes

New Discovery by Well-known Spanish Chemist Produces Bloom of Youth Regardless of Age

Wrinkles could not be removed till the discovery of this amazing new cream. They were the tell-tale marks of age, that no cream or powder could hide. No matter how fresh the complexion, the presence of wrinkles stamp you aged and passé.

A well-known Spanish chemist produced for a few of America's most prominent society women a pure vegetable cream that removed every trace of wrinkles and most remarkable of all, did it within ten minutes' time.

You would be amazed if we could give you the names of some of the prominent women who keep their complexions fresh and clear and free from wrinkles with this remarkable cream. The results from its use have been so wonderful that it is now produced in large quantities under the name of Onamor. Large production has enabled the manufacturing chemists to place it in a few good drug stores at a price within the reach of every woman.

Onamor rejuvenates the skin, stimulates blood circulation and absolutely eliminates flabbiness and wrinkles—and does it in ten minutes' time.

No long treatments or days or weeks of waiting. Your wrinkles will be gone after the very first treatment or every cent you paid will be immediately refunded.

No longer need your beauty suffer because of wrinkles. No longer need your complexion be sallow or your skin rough. Go to any druggist named below. Purchase a tube of Onamor. If you are not positively delighted with the wonderful change for the better in your complexion from the very first application of Onamor, return the remainder of the tube and every cent you paid for it will be immediately refunded to you.

Don't have wrinkles a day longer. Use Onamor tonight and see your wrinkles go within ten minutes' time. You can get Onamor with this absolute guarantee of satisfaction from such good druggists as:

McBride Drug Store, W. S. Elting, Wilson & Walker, Bougaris Pharmacy, Weber's Pharmacy, Connolly Drug Co., Wonderly Co., Rose Gorman-Rose, or write for free book "How to Prevent Facial Aging," The Onamor Co., 33 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Over 2,000 miles on Lakes Erie, St. Clair, Huron, Michigan and among the 30,000 Islands of Georgian Bay—alluring scenery en-route—a chance to visit Mackinac Island, Parry Sound (Ontario, Canada), Detroit, Cleveland & Chicago—metropolis of the West.

minster, where he was trained for the apostolic work that was to make his name immortal. His first labors as a missionary were in Holland, but the hard-hearted pagan ancestors of modern Dutchmen refused to receive the saint or his gospel. Boniface then went to Rome to obtain the blessing of the Pope on his mission, and returned with authority to preach to the German tribes.

It was a slow and dangerous task which Boniface had set for himself, and not a day passed without its perils. Boniface and his converts were especially subjected to the unwelcome attentions of the wandering robber bands, who considered the hated Christians fair prey. With undaunted courage St. Boniface made his way through Bavaria, Thuringia, Priesland, Hesse and Saxony, and his trail was marked by churches, which were usually built on the site of idol temples which had been destroyed by the saint. The sacred trees, consecrated to pagan gods, he felled and used the lumber in building churches.

For years Boniface went about burning and otherwise destroying the idol temples and preaching sermons in which the Teutonic gods were described in terms far from flattering. Perhaps those who remained true to the religion of their fathers believed that in due course their pagan gods would avenge themselves upon the "infidel," but at length they grew weary of waiting for the delayed vengeance of the gods, and took the matter into their own hands. A troop of defenders of the old faith armed themselves with swords and spears, and set out on Boniface's trail. When they found him the saint and his fifty-two attendants offered no resistance, and all were promptly slain by the barbarians. The seed of Christian doctrine had been thoroughly planted by St. Boniface, however, and his death did not stop the conquering march of Christianity.

MONBACCUS CENTER.

Monbaccus Center, June 4.—Miss Ida Blumeing has returned home from New York city, where she spent the winter and spring attending art school.

Those who called on Sunday on Mr. and Mrs. J. Herring were Elting Churchwell and Mr. and Mrs. Clark Quick and son, Clarence, and Mrs. Ida Blumeing.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Krom called on their niece, Mrs. Elting Churchwell, on Sunday evening.

There are three grocery cars running through Monbaccus which makes it very convenient for those living some distance from Kerhonkson.

Their Glory Departed

Years ago the totem pole represented a highly developed and perfect art of the Alaskan Indians. Now they are frequently cut up for sidewalk material or used as firewood.

Stork Left Two Deer Last Week

Decoration Day was appropriately celebrated this year at Forsyth Park when old Mr. Stork flew over the deer enclosure and left two little deer which are doing finely, according to last reports received from the city zoo. Mother and children have been separated from the father because of the fact that in the first year the stork visited the zoo, the big buck killed the two young ones. There are now six deer at the park, the buck and doe and four young deer. In addition to the deer, the city zoo also has two Angora goats, three raccoons and one red fox.

SAWKILL.

Sawkill, June 5.—There were several who came back home for Decoration Day and to spend the week-end. Among the familiar faces were Edward McCaffrey of Yonkers, Lawrence Shortell of Yonkers, Julius Myers of Kingston, Edward Wissme of New Jersey.

The Misses Cecil and Alice Goldpaugh of Kingston spent the week-end with their sister, Mrs. P. Duffy. The Misses Frances and Katie Sheehan of Long Island spent the week-end with Mrs. Lewis Hulsair. Mrs. M. Sheehan and granddaughter M. Toast have returned to their home in Long Island after spending several weeks with Mrs. E. McCaffrey.

Patrick Leahy and brother Jim, of New York city, spent the week-end with their mother.

John McDonald and Ray Hollis of Yonkers spent the week-end at Hulsair Hill.

S. Myers and family of Yonkers spent the week-end with his brother, William Myers.

Thomas Leahy and family spent Sunday with Mrs. O. DuBois.

There were a great many visitors at St. Ann's Cemetery Decoration Day and the past week. The cemetery is in better condition than it has been in years.

The Neenan of New York city spent Sunday in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Costello and family of New York city spent the week-end at their summer cottage.

Mrs. Patrick and family spent the week-end at their summer home.

Several bungalows are being erected in this place which will add quite a great improvement.

Miss Ella Madden and friends of New York city motored to this place Sunday.

Quite a number motored through this place during the past week.

A large crowd attended the dance which was held Friday evening and all reported a good time.

Mrs. C. William has returned home after spending quite some time in New York city.

Mrs. B. Callahan spent Saturday in Kingston.

Lewis Hulsair, superintendent of highways, and a large gang of men are doing good work on the road in this place.

Edwin McLean caught the largest fish ever seen in this section.

Mrs. C. Simsen had a number of boarders over the holidays.

The mission that is being held at St. Ann's Church has been largely attended by the congregation and non-Catholics.

Mrs. John Neenan and daughter Margaret spent Sunday in this place.

The Misses Mary Carroll and Helen Donesteele of Kingston were visitors in this place Sunday.

NEW PALTZ.

New Paltz, June 5.—The Arethusa Society of the Normal School will present the play that has been popularized in the movies and has not become a favorite with the amateur speaking stage, "Pollyanna," on June 9. The play is being directed most capably and efficiently by Bruce Bennett. Seats will be on sale at Gregory's drug store.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huling were in Atlantic City last week attending the National Electric Light Association's convention. They heard Governor Pinchot and Senator Capper from Kansas speak.

Frances Elmore was a week end visitor at her home here. Miss Emma Elmore returned with her to Marmaroneck and will also visit New York city.

The annual memorial service was held in the Reformed Church on Sunday evening. The Methodist and Episcopal Churches united with the Reformed for this service, and was in charge of the ministers of the three churches. The American Legion, Boy Scouts of America, the New Paltz Fire Department as well as all patriotic organizations were invited to attend in their respective groups and were provided with reserved seats.

Mrs. L. A. Osterhout, who spent the winter in Washington, D. C., and has lately been visiting in New Paltz, has returned to her home in Glens Falls.

Postmaster Krom has been able to obtain an initial supply of the Huguenot-Walloon postage stamps in one and two cent denominations, which are now on sale at the post office.

Local Democrats See a Light

principally Tom Taggart of Indiana, and Taggart helped him. Even with the Democratic national convention in New York, the opposition to nominating Smith for president would not be eliminated, but a system of grades, as started at the time New York was under consideration, would enable Tammany to swing enough influence to secure the nomination for vice president if it failed to secure president. It was fully realized that Smith would still be open to the same objection as vice presidential candidate that would face him if he were to be nominated for president.

Copeland for Vice President.

An easy way out of the dilemma, as seen by some of the local Democrats, would be for the Smith forces to be swung to some other New Yorker who would be more acceptable to the west, the middle west and the south. Such a man would be United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, who was elected only in 1922 but whose name is fairly well known throughout the country by reason of his previous record as a public health official in New York city and his health recommendations published in various magazines and newspapers having wide circulation. Senator Copeland's record is neither too wet nor too dry to attract much attention from the Volstead law worshippers or its consistent violators. Copeland was announced by some of his friends some time ago as a candidate for the nomination for president, but that kind of talk ended almost as suddenly as it started. Apparently, there was a reason.

Name Smith for Senator.

In order to be a candidate for president, it would be necessary, of course, for Senator Copeland to resign his seat in the senate, and this he could do sufficiently early for his successor to be elected at the November election. For the office of United States Senator, should this plan go through, local Democrats believe that Governor Smith would be nominated. It would not be necessary for him to resign as governor in order to run for the office of United States Senator. As a candidate for senator, he could repudiate the dry sentiments attributed to him by Franklin D. Roosevelt, and come out as an avowed wet candidate who would at once promise to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law, but without explaining how he would do it alone. If he were running for senator, the dyes of the Bryan type would not have any excuse for coming into New York state to attack him.

Lunn Might Become Governor.

If Senator Copeland should be nominated for Vice President and resign as Senator, it would be up to Governor Smith to appoint a senator to fill the vacancy and such senator would hold office until the fourth of March, 1925. He would appoint a Democrat. Or, it might be advisable for Governor Smith himself to resign as Governor, in which case Lieutenant Governor Lunn would become Governor, with power of appointment, and by a stroke of the pen he could elevate Governor Smith into the Senatorial chair.

In return for such a favor, it is argued by the local Democrats, Lieutenant Governor Lunn would be rewarded with the nomination for Governor which is a nomination he wants. He had already intimated there will be trouble unless he gets it. Once having been nominated, Lunn could be sacrificed by Tammany for the benefit of Smith and the national ticket and thereby Tammany would have its promise to nominate him and taught him a lesson in discipline by defeating him afterward. As a defeated candidate, Lunn would not have any "come back" or Tammany could work for Lunn if he promised to be regular. The question of support would be up to Lunn.

Ralston for President.

As for the head of the Democratic ticket, local Democrats figure that the nomination will go to the middle west in order to offset, if possible, the nomination of a Republican candidate for vice president from that section. Probably the nomination will go to Senator Samuel M. Ralston of Indiana, and thus Tom Taggart would be placed in power and could reciprocate the many favors heretofore extended by Tammany.

From the Tammany standpoint, it is pointed out by local Democrats, the arrangement cited would be admirable: For President, Ralston of Indiana; for Vice President, Copeland of New York; for United States Senator, "Al" Smith; for Governor, George R. Lunn. Such a plan would save Smith the severe drubbing which any Democrat will receive at the hands of United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., next year.

Attitude of Local Clubs.

In view of these prospective arrangements, the two local "Al Smith for President" Clubs are not very active because neither club has figured out how activity will affect the political fortunes of Roscoe Irwin. The Irwin Club doesn't want to do anything to hurt Irwin and the other club doesn't want to do anything to help him. Each club shows the same affection for the other that Governor Smith and William Jennings Bryan display toward each other when they have a chance.

RIPTON.

Ripton, June 5.—Billie Robbins and friend, Chester Plinkham, of Yonkers, spent the week end with Billie's mother, Mrs. Robbins.

Mrs. Alton Davis had company from Scarsdale and Cornwall Sunday.

Miss Emma Vanderleith and the Hurdys motored to Jersey for the week end.

William Robbins' and family of Port Chester spent the week with his brother, Grover Robbins.

An addition is being built on "Do Drop Inn," owned by Mr. Tigor.

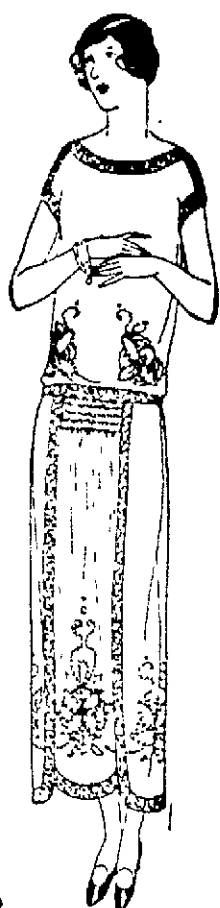

Miss Elma Suomela spent a few days with her mother.

Opening dance tonight at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls.

Open House For First Birthday

The Y. W. C. A. will hold a special "open house" on Friday evening of this week in connection with the celebration of its first birthday anniversary. The program will start at 8 o'clock and it promises to be one of special interest.

The Schubert Choral Club, under the direction of Miss Virginia Los Kamp, has kindly consented to sing several of the numbers which proved most popular at their recent concert. The club is composed of sixty young women of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Georgianna Claffin, reader, will give "The Going of the White Swan" by Gilbert, and Miss Ruth Dana, a recent graduate of Ithaca Conservatory of Music, will play.

A general social hour will follow the program and refreshments will be served. An exhibition of baskets and hats made in the recent classes will be displayed. All young women are cordially invited to take this opportunity to visit the association.

Aviators Will Hunt Couple in Wilds.

MISS HELEN COLE

Aviators are searching through the desolate Mountain Lake region of New Jersey for Helen Cole, California sculptress, and Charles Carter, a friend. They left a house party several days ago, clad in evening dress, to find and make shelter for themselves and get enough food to sustain life, as did the hero and heroine of a recent novel by Arthur Stringer. Fears were felt for their safety.

THINGS UNUSUAL

By T. T. MAXEY

CHICAGO'S NEW UNION STATION

When the old Union depot in Chicago was opened in the '80s it was regarded as a "white elephant" and criticized the railroads for building so big. If those sizes could return and view the new one, to be open soon, expressing utility and saving the highest term, they would be struck dumb with amazement. The project covers 35 1/2 acres and the ground is valued at $1,000,000.

To make room for it, scores of buildings had to be wrecked; 14 streets, having a total length of more than two miles, were rebuilt, and street was elevated several feet, and widened 20 feet for about one mile and a tremendous amount of excavating was necessary—approximately 100,000,000 pounds of steel alone being used in this work.

The depot proper will be 320 by 370 feet and extends 20 stories above ground—the upper portion to be used as a giant office building. The waiting room will be 100 feet wide, 270 feet long, and 114 feet high—with facilities for the use of travelers arranged east of access. The portion containing the waiting, dining, ticketing, checking, and other public conveniences, and the train shed, outwardly appear to be separate buildings, but will be connected under ground by the largest concourse in this country—all located on the level of the platforms which will serve the passenger tracks, or 16 feet below the surrounding streets.

Trains will be dispatched from both ends of the train shed. Five roads—the Burlington route, Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis (the two latter combined forming the Pennsylvania system), Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and the Chicago & Alton—will use this station.

The longest platform will be 1,560 feet; the longest track will accommodate 16 cars and locomotive. The train shed will have a capacity of 256 passenger cars and 20 locomotives.

About 200 trains—an average of one every 5 1/2 minutes, day and night, will enter or leave it, and a maximum of 200,000 passengers can be accommodated daily, in this one of the greatest depots in all the world.

Powder Blue Canton Crepe, Gold Braiding

The martial air is manifest in this smart blouse of powder blue canton crepe with gold braiding, charming for summer wear.

Lace Hats Are Smart for All-Around Wear

Lace has been borrowed by millinery designers from the afternoon and evening frocks of the season. Now the sheer patterned fabric is made into charming hats to wear at the mah-jongg or bridge party, notes a fashion correspondent in the Indianapolis Star. Evening hats for restaurant wear are also shown with lace as their trimming. And many of these hats are fashioned of all-over lace.

One lovely model recently noted boasted a crown of fine henna-colored milan. The brim of the hat was made of cocoa color lace stretched over supports of fine silk wire. Directoire in effect, the back of the brim flared upward and gradually sloped toward the sides with a line of colorful posies.

Black lace is very popular in millinery. It is made, for example, into a lovely little afternoon bonnet, reminiscent of the cloche, with a snug crown of black satin; brim covered in black satin with bands of silver ribbon etched in concentric rows on the under side. A length of black Spanish lace, wide enough to allow the scalloped edge to form a short veil, is draped over the crown and tied at one side. The lace floats off into two streamers, one longer than the other.

Dyed lace, to match the frock with which the hat is worn, is sharing the popularity of black lace. Crepe ribbon, which appears like a polished stovetop, is again in style. It is now used in colors to match the lace with which it is employed. A large lace hat for restaurant wear, the crown and brim of which are both fashioned of soft lace, has a band of wide ribbon around the crown and streamers of the same at one side. Cream-colored lace shows a band of Chinese blue ribbon to be worn with a white frock. And there are such lovely color combinations as henna and brown, gray and coral, sea green and sand, and black with its accompanying ribbon of black satin.

Little Touches That Add to Women's Getup

Dresses with their interesting necklines, smart ties and ribbon trimmings, make necklaces a little less popular, yet many are worn, especially pearls. Bracelets are in abundance, short sleeves giving them full sway.

Parasols, like fans, are always in evidence for the one who knows the art of carrying them. This year, they are of many colors with beautiful handles. In the main, more or less "tailored" in appearance.

There are short gloves of suede, kid, silk and fabric, with scalloped or trimmed wristlet cuffs to wear with both long and short-sleeved dresses; the very long gloves of kid, suede and silk, for the short-sleeved frocks; and the sturdy gauntlets for sports and service wear. The gloves and hose are frequently matched in color, and sometimes the veil joins the other two in a happy trio.

Often, leather trimming is used on the hat or frock to match the purse. The jaunty ribbon or leather fob that hangs from the wee pocket on jacket, blouse or skirt is often of a color to match the purse. If you have a watch too large for wrist wearing, bring it out and attach it to one of these "up-to-the-minute" fobs.

Select to Harmonize

Necklaces and bracelets are legion, but should always be selected to harmonize with other details of the ensemble. We have become somewhat accustomed to the slave bracelet made of long oblong or oval links. This has a companion in a necklace made in similar fashion and worn close about the throat. Other necklaces of square or oval crystals are longer and are seen in the loveliest of colors.

Pink Approved Color

Pink chiffon as a background for silver embroidery, pink crepe with designs of pearls and crystals and delicate apricot-tinted satin with a touch of French blue are seen again and again. A significant note is that these frocks are worn by older women as well as by debutantes.

Early Tales of Travel

Richard Hakluyt, archdeacon of Westminster, made the first collection of travels by Englishmen. In 1539 his first collection appeared entitled "The Principall Navigations, Voiages and discoveries of the English Nation."

Always use enough Rinso to get big lasting suds after the clothes are in

Keep your energy and freshness for your children

Washday need not tire you out • RINSO gives you the cleanest wash in the quickest, easiest way • No more hard rubbing

THE end of washday—and yet you feel fresh and vigorous.

Ready for any game active little brains suggest—eager to explore the cunning resources of the new doll house—glad to read over and over the adventures of Mother Goose to tiny listeners.

You have kept your energy because you have been spared the hardest work of washday—the hard constant rubbing.

ONLY a new kind of soap and a really modern soap could do this for you—and this is just what Rinso is—the first laundry soap that meets the needs of the modern housewife.

Everything about Rinso is modern—even its form is new—fine, creamy-white granules that dissolve completely in hot water. You get a rich soapy solution with more cleansing power than bar soap—and so much quicker and easier to use.

Your clothes are spotless, and you have helped prolong its wearing qualities—you have saved time, strength and labor.

Rinso takes the place of any other laundry soaps or soap you may now be using. It is a complete soap in itself—it does the whole wash whatever your washing methods may be. You need no other soap with it.

Use the rich Rinso solution in your tubs, boiler, washing-machine. The water gets soapy right through—an even rich soapiness that goes into every fibre of your clothes and gently soaks dirt out. Even ground-in dirt needs only a light rubbing.

And then the rinsing is so easy and so thorough—no bits of soap left to ruin clothes under the iron—no soil left to make them look dingy—and, of course, no harmful rubbing at any time.

EVERYWHERE the progressive American woman is using this labor-saving soap. Already more than a million packages are used every week.

Rinso is made by the makers of Lux. Everygrocer has it—in regular size and the big new package. Get it today for your next wash. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Court Reverses Livingston Case

Court of Appeals Holds New York, Ontario & Western Railroad Need Not Pay for Structures at Livingston Manor.

The New York, Ontario & Western Railroad Company has achieved a victory in the decision of the court of appeals handed down on Tuesday afternoon, the court sustaining the railroad's contention in the proceeding brought by it to condemn the lands at Livingston Manor in Sullivan county, upon which its railroad bed and structures in that village exist.

The case has attracted attention not only in this region, but throughout the United States because of the romantic incidents involved with its legal features. Edward Livingston, a distinguished member of that great Scotch family, who was born in August, 1797, went to what is now Livingston Manor in 1828, where he bought many thousands of acres of land, established himself in a house with servants, keeping a coach and coachman, fencing in his homestead, decorating the pillars of his gates with what his neighbors called images, but which in fact were the heraldic lions of Scotland. He built a library with mahogany doors. He was among the first in America to introduce running water into his house, and into a separate bath-house which he built. He had a large wine cellar filled with the choicest vintages of France and Spain, and entertained his aristocratic relatives in the summer in a sumptuous manner. He spent his winters in New York. Never marrying, he died in 1864, aged sixty-seven years, leaving a will by which he devised his manor, now Livingston Manor, to his nephew, Charles Octavius Livingston, who was a resident of Flatbush, in this county, where he made a specialty of raising golden pippin apples and supplied the royal table at Windsor Castle with them.

Edward Livingston's will provided that the property and its appurtenances were to be used and enjoyed by his nephew, Charles Octavius, during the term of the latter's life, and that at his death, it was to descend to his oldest son who should then be living; that if his nephew should die leaving no son, then the property should descend to the daughters of his nephew then living, and to the issue of such daughters as before that time might have died. In event his nephew should leave no issue, the property should go to his nephew, John R. Livingston during the term of his natural life, and after his death descend to his oldest son who should then be living. That if John R. Livingston should leave no son, then it should go to such of the daughters of John R. as should at the time of his death be living, and the issue of such daughters as should before that time have died. "And I hereby enjoin upon my said nephews and such of their children who may at any time become possessed of the said farm under this will that they do not sell or in any way part with the same, it being my desire that the said farm with its appurtenances shall remain in the possession of my family, and that the same shall not be sold or pass into the possession of strangers."

Charles Octavius in 1871 executed to Medel T. Morse, one of the great tanners of the Catskill mountains, an absolute deed of the manor farm, by which he warranted the title to Morse and his grantees as against the children and heirs of him, Charles Octavius, and against any claim by any person claiming any rights under the will of Edward his uncle, Morse erected a tannery which was the largest not only of Sullivan county, but larger than any of northern Pennsylvania. He sold lands to various persons who built houses, churches, school houses, stores and other buildings, with the result that the manor farm of Edward Livingston today is the village of Livingston Manor. It has a bank, two garages, an electric lighting plant and police and fire department, and of course moving picture theaters.

The New York, Ontario & Western Railroad runs through it with its railroad bed, tracks, sidings, station house and other appurtenances, and thus it is that Livingston Manor prides itself upon being what it actually is, a thoroughly up-to-date twentieth century mountain summer resort.

Charles Octavius died at his residence in Flatbush in this county in 1914, leaving his widow and two sons, Charles Victor and Robert R., the oldest being Charles Victor. On proceedings to affix the transfer tax on the estate of Charles Octavius, it was appraised at $61,824.81.

Three years after his father's death, Charles Victor began an action of ejectment by a firm of New York lawyers as his attorneys, not only against the New York, Ontario & Western Railroad Company but against the other people who had built on the lands owned by Charles Octavius, for the purpose of evicting them from their property which they had bought and paid for, claiming that under the will of his grandfather, Edward, immediately upon the death of his father, he became entitled to the entire property. Charles Victor Livingston's father had been paid the full value of the property, and some of those sued by Victor defended the actions upon the ground that the will of Edward Livingston suspended the power of alienation for longer than two lives in being, and that therefore Victor acquired no right or estate in the property.

Among the others who defended was the New York, Ontario & Western Railroad Company. The trial began on Monday, the 15th of September, 1919, and took three days to try before Judge Nichols. The principal question of law involved was whether the will of Edward did or did not suspend the power of alienation longer than two lives in being, it being conceded that if it did, Charles Victor could not recover; if

CARL MILLINERY
THE DEPARTMENT THAT SERVICE BUILT.
Blue Bird and Gage Weekly Service.
LILLIAN SCHOONMAKER, Mgr.

It did not, then he could. Dean, Tracy & McBaran of New York, with Elwood Baker of Sullivan county, represented Livingston. The Hon. Charles L. Andrus of New York, Judge Rosch of Liberty and Judge Clearwater were counsel for the Railroad Company.

Judge Nichols held that the title vested in Victor Livingston. This being affirmed by the appellate division, the New York, Ontario & Western began a proceeding in the supreme court to condemn the property under the provisions of the railroad law, contending that even if the land did belong to Victor, he could not recover the value of the railroad bed and structures placed upon it. Victor and his counsel claimed that he could recover not only the value of the land but the value of everything that the railroad had erected upon the land from the time they bought it.

Judge Hasbrouck appointed Judge John G. Van Etten, Senator Charles W. Walton and Edson Knapp commissioners to hear the case and to determine the questions involved and to ascertain the value of the property. The commission took a great deal of testimony and reported in favor of Livingston upon all the issues involved. They found that the value of the land alone was $15,000 and the value of the structures placed upon it by the Railroad Company was $40,000, and reported in favor of Victor $64,000.

Judge Staley affirmed that report. From the judgment entered on their report, the railroad company appealed to the appellate division, which affirmed the award and report of the commission, and from that decision the railroad company appealed to the court of appeals, where the case was argued at length before the full bench on the 31st day of March, this year, by Judge Clearwater for the railroad company and Howard Chipp for Victor Livingston.

There was a dramatic moment during the argument when the judge, pointing to the heroic bronze statue of Chancellor Livingston, which occupies the most prominent place except the bench in the court of appeals chamber, said: "What do your Honors think the great Chancellor with his profound and just conception of law and equity would say of this conduct of a member of a family bearing the illustrious name of Livingston pressing so unrighteous and inequitable a claim against a purchaser in good faith for full value as does this claimant?" He argued that the opinion of Judge Staley and of the judges of the appellate division that the railroad company was a trespasser from the time it entered upon the property until the time of the judgment of ejectment was an antiquated, obsolete, discredited application of the once famous legal fiction of trespass by relation.

Although the court has handed down several batches of decisions since the argument of the case, it evidently regarded it as of such importance that it held the decision over until Tuesday, when it decided that the order of the appellate division be modified by deducting the sum of $49,000 allowed by the Commissioners Van Etten, Walton and Knapp for the value of the railroad structures, and that Livingston might recover simply the value of the land. The opinion was by Judge Cardozo, Judges McLaughlin and Andrews dissenting.

When asked by a Freeman reporter whether the people at Livingston Manor who had been compelled to pay Victor Livingston could recover back the moneys they had paid, Judge Clearwater said it was impossible for him to express an opinion upon that subject until he had seen the opinion of Judge Cardozo in the court of appeals.

Darwin's Theory.
The general theory of evolution as first set forth by Darwin has not been discredited or exploded, but is accepted as scientifically established. There have been various modifications of Darwin's theory; for example, the theory of development through the use and disuse of parts of the body (which Darwin adapted from Lamarck) has been discredited by all but a very few Neo-Lamarckians, but the survival of the fittest to survive through evolutionary processes remains unchallenged in scientific circles.

NEW UNIVERSE IS SEEN IN HARVARD PHOTOGRAPHS

Faint Haze in Sagittarius May Prove That Heavens Are Formed From Ice.

Washington.—Government scientists identified with glacial research work in Glacier National park are showing interest in the new theory developed by the Viennese scientist, Dr. Hans Hoerbiger, that glacial cosmogony "explains" the origin of the heavens.

This idea, that ice is the building material with which new universes are constantly forming in the heavens, recently stirred scientific circles of Europe. Now it is being given particular attention in America in connection with the recent discovery at the Harvard observatory, where photographs were taken showing that a faint and nameless luminous haze in the sky in the constellation of Sagittarius, the Archer, is a distinct universe.

From these photographs Dr. Harlow Shapely, director of the observatory, estimates that it takes 1,000,000 years for light to travel from this newly found universe, which, he says, is the most distant object ever viewed by the eye of man. He bases this statement on the fact that the most distant stars known prior to this measurement are only 250,000 light-years from our earth.

The new universe found by the main moth lenses measures six quintillion miles away. It took a 100-inch reflecting telescope, the largest ever made, to find this "cloud of stars."

Equipment Devised for Scraping Hog Carcasses

Patents on mechanical equipment for removing hair and scurf from hog carcasses have been assigned to the citizens of the United States by Dr. Robert B. Leeper, federal veterinary inspector at Denver, Colo.

The device invented by Doctor Leeper, who is in the employ of the bureau of animal industry of the United States Department of Agriculture, may be made, used, or rented by anyone without paying royalties. It is of particular interest and value to the meat-packing industry, and reports of those using the invention say that it is quite satisfactory.

Babylonian Seals Form
New Key to Ancient Past

Philadelphia.—Through the possession of more than 500 Babylonian seals, the translation and classification of which recently have been completed by Dr. Leon Legrain, curator of the Babylonian section of the university museum, the University of Pennsylvania has supplied the archeological world with an unbroken chain for the future study of the origin, development, art, religion and epigraphy of Babylon.

For two years Doctor Legrain has been at work classifying and translating the seals, which include five royal cylinders.

To the eyes of thousands who yearly flock to the university museum the latest exhibit will attract more than common interest, but to students of the historical mysteries of thousands of years ago the seals will supply three new elements of information.

First, an early chronology going back to nearly 5000 B. C.; second, an early Elamite art on painted seals and vases, undoubtedly executed before 3000 B. C.; and third, a better-known Akkadian empire, of about 2700 B. C.

Would Sell Mechanical
Army to United States

New York.—Neils W. Aasen, quiet, scholarly Danish inventor, has expressed his intention of coming to this country shortly to offer his "mechanical soldiers" and superbombs to the United States.

A line of soulless mechanisms buried in the earth along frontiers, waiting for years for the hand on an electric button that will release them to shower bullets and poison gas on invaders—that is Mr. Aasen's substitute for flesh and blood defensive armies. His human equivalent is reduced to a few engineers to guide the defensive lines and, on the offensive, to aviators, whose function would be poison-gas bombing, and to naval crews operating his newly invented depth bombs against enemy shipping.

With different wave lengths, successive tiers of the underground soldiers could be exploded to stop the advance of any army whose positions could be reported by radio from observation airplanes.

Vacation Perils Are Vanishing As Pleasure Seekers Observe Health and Safety Precautions

July, August and September are the months when most people plan to take their vacations, and they are not only the most healthful months in the year, but they are the months which for some years past have shown the greatest decline in mortality. Every one wants to die happy, but nobody wants to die while enjoying a vacation. Fortunately vacations are not as perilous as they used to be, and by the exercise of a little forethought and prudence the few lurking dangers can usually be avoided. Summer drownings are not as duce the danger from typhoid fever and other intestinal diseases. Good food, fresh air and good water are three prime requisites of any vacation. Fresh air is usually taken for granted, but one cannot be too careful in assuring himself that the resort selected has a dependably pure water supply and that the food supply is everything that it ought to be. Health departments have done good work in improving the standards of milk dealers and it ought to be an easy task to find a place where even the baby will thrive, on the va-numerous as formerly, in spite of the fact that more persons are exposed to risk. The increased knowledge of swimming, the improved methods of rescue work and a more general understanding of resuscitation methods, probably accounts for the decline. Back in 1914, the mortality tables of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company show that ten out of every 100,000 of its industrial policyholders met death by drowning. Last year it ran less than seven. In July, 1921, the company was paying claims at the rate of nine deaths by drowning daily. Last July the average was almost two less. Accidental drowning is still from dailies where cleanliness is not rigidly maintained, that vacation time is usually followed by a sad aftermath of typhoid fever cases in the early fall months. Sunstroke and heat prostrations are summer perils rather than vacation dangers. Vacationists can usually play safe by playing a little less strenuously when the mercury climbs to the top of the tube.

There is Strength in Every Tablet of This Newer Form of Iron

One does often help commence to enrich your blood and revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves—it is a newer form of iron, like the iron in spinach. It is so prepared that it will not irritate the stomach. It is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. While some physicians claim metallic iron which is usually taken is not absorbed at all. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of this newer form of iron—three times per day, after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

NOTE—The manufacturers of this newer form of iron known as Nuxated Iron are thoroughly reliable; since its introduction it has reached the stupendous sale of over 4,000,000 packages annually, and it has been used and highly recommended by former U. S. senators, members of Congress, judges of U. S. Courts and many physicians. We are able to guarantee that if you do not obtain all the benefits that you expect from Nuxated Iron the manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

How Bleachodent Whitens Dark Teeth In Three Minutes

Bleachodent Combination contains a mild liquid to soften stains—and a special paste which gently removes them. That's why tobacco stained teeth are made flashing white, sparkling clear—almost while you wait. Perfected by two prominent dentists, it uses liquid once a week, once every day. Perfects teeth wonderfully white and strong. Don't go around with bad looking teeth. They spoil appearance, and lead to tooth decay and bad breath. Bleachodent COMBINATION (containing both liquid and paste) for small cost, call good druggists.

Easiest Course Usually Wrong

So Says Traffic Expert at State Mayors' Conference—Advices Making Right Courses the Conventional Ones.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rochester, June 5.—Discussing the essential features of an efficient traffic regulation at last night's session of the New York state conference of mayors and city officials, G. G. Kelcey, traffic expert, expressed the belief that a large part of the automobile accident problem can be solved if cities can make what they want the motorist to do the only convenient thing he can do. He further contended that 70 per cent of all automobile accidents are at street intersections.

"When a pedestrian crosses the normal crosswalk, he intersects traffic at right angles and under such conditions accidents very rarely occur," continued Mr. Kelcey. "On the other hand, a pedestrian who walks diagonally across a corner is a very poor insurance risk. He is not only confused himself, but he confuses anyone else who may be approaching him."

"As proof of this, it has been found over and over again that where vehicles intersect at right angles, between 70 and 90 per cent of accidents were eliminated, even though previous experience had shown the point to be very dangerous. In regulating traffic we must recognize the principle that when two moving elements of traffic intersect at right angles there is no confusion and when they intersect at acute angles a confusion area is developed which increases as the angle and speed increase."

"Traffic follows lines of least resistance. The easiest course is usually the wrong one. Conditions are created with respect to other traffic so that judgment of speeds, distances or clearances is impossible. Observation at intersections shows that such conditions are common in spite of all ordinances to the contrary. Vehicles which take wrong courses usually do so because they can maintain a high speed, so that high speed is always a factor."

"I believe I can demonstrate to you that it is possible to create conditions at traffic points that wrong courses are blocked out, and the right ones may be only convenient routes. Our object is, first, to obtain a speed at which a vehicle is under easy control, and secondly, right angles intersections. The only practical method that I know of to create such conditions is to place signals in such a fashion that wrong courses of traffic can be blocked out without interfering with proper movement. In other words, by means of signals it is possible to block out lines of least resistance that create trouble and to establish new lines of least resistance which make traffic of its own volition take the proper course."

NEW PALTZ.

New Paltz, June 4.—Dorothy Ray Fowler called on friends in Jenkins-town recently. Miss Fowler reports this place an ideal spot in the spring. Mrs. Walter Chapman is spending a few days in town.

George Matheson spent the week-end in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Deyo entertained a few friends the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb Kniffen entertained the following guests on Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Forrest D. Miller of Poughkeepsie, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Van Vleet of Newburgh, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hargraves of Kingston, Anson C. Coutant and Mr. and Mrs. Zina Coutant of Tillson. Mrs. Kniffen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Van Vleet, and sister, Mrs. Forrest Miller, will remain for a few days' visit.

David Minard of Poughkeepsie, was a recent caller in town.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Philan Sorority Tuesday night, the officers for the coming year were elected. President, Allison Goldsmith; vice-president, Catherine Alexander; secretary, Bessie Raymond; treasurer, Adele Herge. Correspondence with Edith Mackall, the grand critic of the Aphonians, has assured the sorority that it will be made a chapter of that society.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Halmshaw entertained guests over Sunday. Dewitt Van Wagenen is very ill at his home.

Word has been received to the effect that Bishop Shipman, Suffragan bishop of the diocese of New York, will represent Bishop Manning at the bishop's annual visitation to St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. The rite of confirmation will be administered on this occasion on Thursday evening, June 5th at 7:30. This is a public service and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dean, on the New Paltz and Highland road, have been entertaining Mr. Dean's mother, Mrs. William Dean, from Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Schoonmaker and children of Highland, spent Sunday with Mr. Schoonmaker's parents in town.

OLIVE BRIDGE.

Olive Bridge, June 5.—On Tuesday evening, May 24, the congregation of the Olive Bridge charge tendered to their pastor the Rev. S. S. Robbins and wife, a reception in honor of the tenth anniversary of their wedding. In addition to many individual gifts as tokens of appreciation of their work here, the Ladies' Aid Society of the Vly church presented Mr. Robbins with a very fine leather bound Bible. The presentation was made by Arthur Trowbridge on behalf of the ladies and Mr. Robbins in accepting, spoke of his deep appreciation, not only of the gifts but of the spirit of good fellowship that prompted the celebration of the occasion.

League to Buy In Own Securities

The board of directors of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., has voted to use an initial appropriation of $250,000 to a sinking fund to retire certificates of indebtedness for the purchase of certificates of Series A, maturing in 1927.

Certificates of indebtedness represent deductions made from members' milk checks as loans to the association to provide funds for purchasing or building milk plants and for working capital. They bear six per cent interest and are payable in five years. The total amount of Series A is $1,301,060.24 for deductions made in 1921-1922, the first year of the pooling plan.

The association will pay 95 cents on the dollar for the certificates, plus accrued interest to July 1, 1924. Chester Young, the treasurer, has been authorized to make the purchases from July 1 to 31, inclusive. Numbers from one to 10 were placed in a hat and President G. W. Slocum, in the presence of the directors, drew "10," thus determining that the association would buy certificates bearing serial numbers ending in a cipher in case owners wish to sell.

All directors, county presidents and membership auditors have signed an agreement not to offer their certificates for sale to the sinking fund.

The Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., owns milk plants and equipment originally costing $9,333,125.78. Depreciation has been charged off until the plants stand on the association's books at $5,717,490.76. The association has, at this time in cash and inventories, after deducting all its liabilities, sufficient resources to pay 53.3 per cent of all certificates of indebtedness issued or to be issued without selling, pledging or sacrificing any of its plants.

THERE'S REASON IF RED CLOVER FAILS

Like the old grey mare that "ain't what she used to be," the fields on some farms that used to grow red clover well, today fail to produce a good crop.

There's a reason, points out Dr. A. F. Gustafson of the state college of agriculture at Ithaca. This reason, he finds, is a loss of lime and of fertility from the soil.

He gives this information in a new bulletin on the use of lime in New York which the college has just issued.

"The most important factor is the loss of lime, or the development of the so-called 'lime requirement' or 'soil acidity,' that lime and similar materials are being removed in drainage water," he writes. "In carefully conducted tests on the Cornell experiment field, expressed as a five-year average, one soil lost lime and magnesium equivalent to 486 pounds, and another 745 pounds, of pure limestone, to the acre."

"In these tests, the drainage is better than on the average farm, and therefore the loss is probably somewhat higher than may be expected in the ordinary field. In field tests for acidity, we have found an average loss of about 500 pounds to the acre a year, and this will require one ton of limestone every four years in order to make up this loss."

"Calcium, the active, useful element in any form of lime, is absolutely necessary for plant growth. Some plants, like clover and alfalfa, use more calcium than do such others as corn and timothy."

The bulletin, which is E 78, gives full information about liming New York soils and contains a map showing in a general way the relative lime contents of various sections. The bulletin may be obtained by writing the college at Ithaca.

ZENA.

Zena, June 4.—The regular meeting of the Community Club will be held at the church hall on Friday evening, June 5. New members cordially invited to join.

The regular school meeting was held at the school house and officers were elected as follows: Clerk, David Melbert, collector, William Klementis, Sr. A special meeting was held on May 28 to elect a trustee. John Carnright was elected.

The Ladies' League of this place gave Mrs. John Carnright a birthday party on Saturday evening, May 31. A large crowd was present and the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Refreshments were served. Mrs. Carnright received a plant from the league and various other gifts from her friends.

Helen Sumko spent the week-end with Mrs. Hibjan.

Mrs. Dan Lynch entertained a home-full of company over the week-end.

Edith Baldinger of New York, spent the week-end at her sister's, Mrs. Leroy Wolven.

Howard Harcourt and family were in Woodstock Tuesday.

Alice Klementis is working in Woodstock for the summer.

Mrs. Carnright entertained company from Newburgh over the week-end.

The Rev. Harvey I. Todd preached his first sermon as pastor of this church on Sunday. Holy communion was partaken of.

ALLIGERVILLE.

Alligerville, June 5.—Miss Anna Lent spent the week-end in High Falls.

Garry Sutton is visiting his son, Garry Sutton, Jr.

A large crowd attended the K. of P. dance Saturday night.

Mrs. Elwin Coddington, who has been sick with appendicitis, is improving under the care of Dr. Johnston of Kingston.

Harry Purcell is employed at Dreamland Farm.

Mrs. George Osterhoudt and Mrs. Garry Sutton spent Thursday in Kerhonkson.

Miss Anna Lent called on Mrs. Elwin Coddington Thursday evening.

AT THE END OF THE LONG TRAIL

By MOLLIE MATHER

(Copyright, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

ROSE MARY came to the dividing of the path and stood undecided. The sunlight filtering down through heavy trees invited her onward.

"You must go away to a high altitude at once," Rose Mary's physician had said, "and you know, don't you, that you may not come back. There you will live perhaps to a good old age. But you must not try to come back."

Rose Mary already was gaining in strength and had lost her first sense of isolation. Today a strange anticipation of coming pleasure brought a flush to her rounding cheeks. There was even a thought of adventure in choosing from one of the three trails reaching out before her. Unknown, Rose Mary chose the longest trail. Wandering on and on in silence, and when presently it occurred to her that she must be going back to the white farmhouse for the evening meal, she found that she could no longer trace the way back. Beyond the opening she might find some sign of life and seek information there. True, as she had thought, a house confronted her. Rose Mary smiled at the whimsical fancy of an olden fairy tale—where the princess, lost in the wood, comes upon an old woman's cabin. The old woman, who by her magic would bestow upon this desolate maiden her heart's desire. Rose Mary caught her breath as a very old lady stepped from the door out into a little flower garden. The young woman hastened toward her and confided her plight. The old lady was sympathetic and comforting. "Why, my dear," she said, "it would be impossible for you to go back the long trail. You shall stop with me tonight, if you please, and we will telephone your friends. Oh, yes, I have a telephone," the old lady laughed softly, "my boys saw to that when I insisted upon remaining in the old family nest, while my birdlings went out into the world to seek their fortune. I just could not be transplanted," said the old lady. "Went to visit my lawyer son one time and was so lonely for the morning song of my mountain birds, so longing for the sweet, clear air; home, dearie, you see, just home! I'd not be able to get along, perhaps, if I had not known the same mountain love that I do. Of all my son's friends Joey is the only one who stayed on. And Joey fits in, some way, with the scenery. Big and brave and beautiful is Joey Judson. He keeps up the home of his people so that anyone might be proud to stop there. There is Mrs. Tousey to keep house for him and old Mr. Tousey to help with chores. Joey sees to it that they are good neighbors. He had a radio put in lately and often of an evening Joey comes to take me over to hear music. If you are not too weary tonight it might help to pass the evening to hear Joey's radio."

Joey came at evening to fetch the mother of his boyhood friends. There was a silent pact between these absent friends and Joey that the nervously home-loving Mrs. Tudor should not lack friendship.

The blue eyes of Rose Mary widened in pleased surprise when she met Joey Judson; he was so suitably a part of the adventure, with his fine bronzed face and his winning smile. Joey made Rose Mary think of her favorite western "movie" actor. It was true, as her hostess had said—Joey fitted in with the free mountain scenery as he never could fit anywhere else.

So it happened that after the evening of music from Joey's radio, Rose Mary was prevailed upon to stay on with Mrs. Tudor. And it was Joey who drove his light cart to bring her baggage from the white farmhouse. Surely this little old lady of the wood was also weaving some magic spell. Never had Rose Mary known the joy of those sunlit mountain mornings. Joey often waiting with a saddled horse for her to ride.

She ran back on a certain morning to kiss, in the overflow of grateful affection, the happy old lady waving her adieu down the path. Joey seemed kinder and nearer than any man who had touched Rose Mary's young life. Her cheeks glowed with new color. His dark eyes regarded her earnestly. "We will," said Joe Judson, "drive down the longest trail today. Rose Mary, I have much to talk over with you, dear." But after all, there was little left unsaid when the loving word had fallen from the man's lips. For Rose Mary knew that here, in the purity of the mountains, in the simplicity of forest ways, this one word expressed its true meaning. She was "dear" to him. And she was glad. Oh, how glad! "Rose Mary," Joey was saying, "you know of my love. But it is much I would ask of one long used to life in the cities—I would have to ask you to share my solitude, dear heart—elsewhere. I am as some forest beast, held in bondage. Love does much—love, if you could learn the lesson, Rose Mary, might even make of the solitude a paradise."

And the girl who had thought of the mountain as her exile, stretched out her hands.

"Joey, Joey," she said, "I'm so glad to stay."

Tax Reduction a Great Benefit

President Coolidge, by signing the tax measure, has kept his promise to reduce taxes, more especially those paid by the men and women who earn but little.

His action means that congress has granted the president's demand that a flat reduction of 25 per cent be given for 1923—this is a decided victory for the people and for Calvin Coolidge—it means that the interests of the man or woman, no matter whether on the farm or in the city, have been safeguarded by the president—it means that the head of the nation has kept his word to the citizens of the land—it means that congress has at last realized that the people stand solidly behind the president in his fight for a reduction of taxes.

It is true that the measure just passed is not exactly what the president desired. He wanted a bill that would mean an even greater reduction of taxes. There is no doubt that at the next session of congress the president will insist that the tax bill be revised so as to give even further relief, and by that time the constructionists in congress will, no doubt, have been informed in emphatic terms by their constituents to do as the president desires.

When June 7 was tentatively agreed upon as the date of adjournment, the president summoned numerous leaders to the White House and flatly told them that farm legislation of remedial character was necessary before the members of the two bodies departed for their homes.

The McNary-Haugen bill has not met with the approval of the heads of the many farm organizations, many of them claiming that while it might give some slight temporary relief, it was economically unsound and impractical in application. The people and the president can see no reason why a bill to aid agriculture should not be enacted into law, and at once.

OPERATE MACHINES AT PROPER SPEED

Any machine to be operated efficiently must be run at the speed intended by the designer. To belt an engine cutter to an engine which speeds it up too much may cause the cutter to blow up and endanger the lives of the operators. Running it too slow, on the other hand, will cause the blower pipe to become clogged.

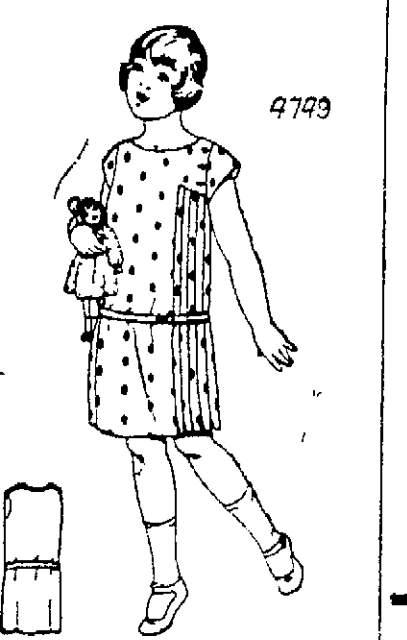

This is one fact brought out by N. D. Steve and F. G. Behrends of the state agricultural college in a new bulletin on transmission of power by means of pulleys, belts and shafts which the college has just published in its extension series.

The bulletin describes the various kinds of pulleys and belts, shows by means of diagrams how to lace a belt, line up shafting, install drop hangers, and, in fact, perform almost any operation in a simple power plant.

Rules are also given for determining the sizes of pulleys needed to operate machines at the proper speed.

The bulletin will be sent free of charge, as long as the supply lasts, on requests to the college of agriculture at Ithaca. The number of the bulletin is E 72.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Pretty Frock for Mother's Girl.

4749. Wool crepe, gingham or voile could be used for this style. It is also a good model for linen. The closing is effected at the left side on shoulder and at armscye, but additional opening is also provided for. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. An 8 year size requires 2 yards of 36 inch material. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

NEW HURLEY.

New Hurley, June 4.—A number from this place attended the pageant at New Paltz on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Carson of Leptondale spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Powell.

Mrs. Harriet Lawson of Long Island is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mowell.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Van Kleeck and mother, also Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Schoonmaker and grandson, Edward Jenkins, attended the circus at Middletown on Saturday.

The children's day exercises will be held in the church on Sunday morning, June 15, at 10:30, standard time.

Hupmobile

The Better Way To Buy a Motor Car

Most persons dislike mechanical details. But how a motor car is engineered and built, and what it is built of, are both extremely important.

That is why automobile buyers today are discounting glib selling talk and demanding assurance that a car will stand up and give low-cost service.

There is only one way you can get such assurance. You must see for yourself how it is engineered and built—and of what it is built.

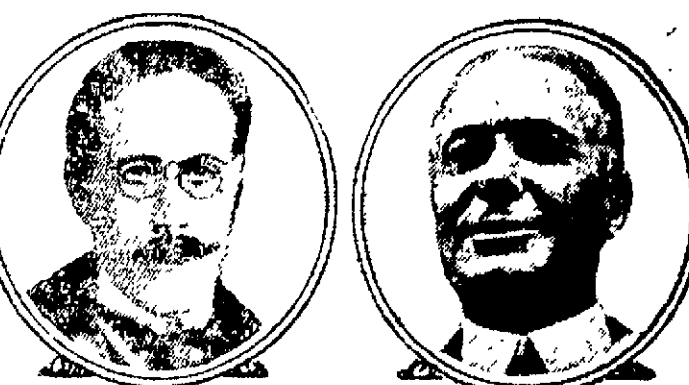

The Hupmobile Parts Display gives you the Hupmobile story at a glance. It is interesting—and enlightening. You should by all means see it. Come in soon.

Hupmobile brake and clutch pedals are good examples of the safety built into the Hupmobile. They are drop-forged, double heat-treated steel, also the hand brake and gear-shift levers, brake-rod clevises and toggles—much stronger and safer than the less costly low carbon steel or malleable castings often used.

MRS. CHRISTOBEL RUSSELL, HON. JOHN RUSSELL (below) JOEL WOLF THORNE and JACOB G. SCHURMAN.

Jacob Gould Schurman, American Minister to Peking, is expected in Tokyo to succeed Cyrus E. Woods as American Ambassador to Japan. The Law Lords of the House of Lords have overturned the decision of the lower courts and sustained the legitimacy of the birth of the famous "dream baby," son of the Hon. John Russell, heir to the estate of Lord Amphil, and his wife, Mrs. Christobel Russell. Just a few hours after the New York courts had sustained his divorce and awarded him the custody of his ten-year-old son, Joel Wolf Thorne, multi-millionaire New Yorker, was struck by an automobile near Paterson, Conn., and killed. The boy inherits the estate.

Colonials Will Have Busy Week

Next week will prove a busy one for the Kingston Colonials. On Sunday, June 8, they will play the Sheridan Caseys of Brooklyn. The Caseys were to play here earlier in the season but the game had to be called off on account of rain.

Tuesday and Thursday twilight games will be played at the Kingston Fair Grounds. Tuesday evening the D. & H. Generals will play the third game of a seven game series with the locals. Each team has so far won a game.

Thursday evening Larry Doyle's Glens Falls team will be the attraction at the Fair Grounds.

The Colonials expect to play in Middletown on Wednesday and on Saturday at White Plains.

Two Suits Filed To Stop Bonus

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, June 5.—Although he is opposed to the soldier bonus as a matter of principle, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon declared today that he believed congress had a legal right to enact the bonus law.

His statement was made in connection with a suit filed here for an injunction to stop the bonus. Mellon was named one of the defendants in the suits, which was brought by Benjamin Catchings, a New York lawyer.

Another suit to stop the bonus was filed in the district supreme court today by Joseph Whelless of New York, who said he served as a major in the World War and was honorably discharged. Whelless is a lawyer and represented himself in the suit.

He declared that the bonus act was "unjust, illegal and unreasonable," and asked the court to enjoin the war and navy department and the veterans' bureau from carrying it into effect.

DR. CHANDLER SPEAKER AT ATLANTIC CITY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Atlantic City, June 5.—Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer, of Chicago, was elected president of the American Urological association at its 21st convention held at The Ambassador. Dr. Clarence R. Dr. George F. Chandler, of Kingston, New York, will speak at the annual banquet on the subject of "Good Government." Dr. Chandler organized the New York State Constabulary.

Billiards Prove Great Help to Golf Players

It is generally known that Jack Hutchinson is the originator of the famous mashie-stopputt pitch, but not many probably know just how the pepper-Scot came to his invention. In his exhibitions of the shot on a recent tour a spectator, struck by the wizardry of Jack's mashie, exclaimed, "How in the world did you ever think of that shot?"

"Oh, I discovered that a number of years ago, when I was professional at the St. Andrew's club in New York," replied Hutch. "One night while playing billiards, in making a draw shot I wondered if the same thing could be done with a golf ball. I thought about the matter and the next day roughened the face of my mashie by punching holes on it. With that club I was able to stop the ball a little. Then I had a mashie ribbed with a milling machine. That worked very well, but later I had the grooves in the face of the club widened. After that all I had to do was to learn to play the shot properly."

Humming Bird Dies of Grief Over Mate's Loss

Oakland, Cal.—Otto Emerson, Hayward (Cal.) naturalist, who found two humming birds a few days old and raised them until full grown, reports that one of them died of grief because it accidentally caused the death of the other.

Emerson said the birds were inseparable. For hours they would play together, and at night they would roost close to each other. One day in their aerial swinging, one knocked the other with force against a wall. The injured bird retired to a dark corner and paid no attention to the solicitous chirpings of its mate. The next morning it was dead. The bereaved bird seemed dazed all that day. His feathers drooped, his head hung. He neither flew nor ate. The next morning he, too, was dead.

Bones of Mastodon Found

Tucson, Ariz.—The massive bones of a mastodon, believed to have lived during the Pliocene period, some 500,000 years ago, have been found near here and turned over to the University of Arizona.

Rabbits Ruin Trees

Reports reaching Juneau, Alaska, from the interior tell of the serious damage done to young forest trees by horde of snowshoe rabbits infesting the Northland this winter. In the absence of grass and herbs for food the rabbits are gnawing the bark of birch, larch, cottonwood, cedar, hemlock and fir. These trees, completely girdled by the rodents' teeth, are sure to die in the spring.

A Young Wag.

Father was explaining a not unusual winter sight. "You see, my son, the water in the river is so much warmer than the air that the vapor rises from it." "I guess," said Johnny, "I'd be warm, too, if I'd run as far as that river has."—Boston Transcript.

Fatality at Brickyard Today

Harold Horning Accidentally Met Death While at Work on Staple's Brickyard at Malden.

Harold Horning of Malden was instantly killed this noon, while working on the Staple Brickyard at Malden, when the handle of a large drag shovel struck him in the neck. Doctors were summoned from Saugerties, but their assistance was of no avail as his neck was broken and he died immediately.

Horning was about 34 years of age and was a brickyard employee for a great number of years. At the time of the accident the large shovel, which is used in digging out the clay from the bank, was not in operation, but was filed and was the last to be conveyed for the day's work. While releasing the cable, the handle flew back striking him in the neck. This was the second time that Horning had been struck with the handle this week.

When news of his death reached his mother, she fainted and was attended by a physician. Besides his mother he is survived by two brothers, one employed at Newburgh by the New York Telephone Company and the other a student of the Saugerties High School.

Electric Plant at Saugerties.

Charles E. Keefe of Saugerties has recently installed a Kingstonian electric power pumping outfit which he purchased of the Canfield Supply Company.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman. New York, June 5.—Price movements were irregular at the opening of the stock exchange today. Different stocks registered fractional gains, but these were more than offset by declines in other directions. Sugar and petroleum shares displayed heaviness. Railroad shares were steady.

In the absence of any specific development of direct hearing on values, trading presented a quiet but generally steady front in the forenoon trading on the stock exchange today. The speculative mind was still somewhat confused as the result of yesterday's sudden reversal of the upward trend caused by the very marked decrease in iron production shown in the report for May.

Price movements in the opening dealings clearly reflected the hesitating mood but irregularity was soon supplanted by steadiness when it was found that offerings by bear speculators did not create any unsettledness to speak of.

Sugar and oils were only the groups against which pressure was applied with some measure of success. Coshen was again freely offered, establishing a new low for the year below 26.

The general run of industrial shares hovered around their previous levels with the exception of a few individual issues which were affected by influences local to them.

U. S. Rubber Common, for example, developed weakness on the announcement that its subsidiary, the National India Rubber Company, would shut down for three months its footwear division. American Sumatra went to a new record low in connection with the company's poor outlook. International Paper showed strength.

In sharp contrast with the lack of constructive activities in the industrial groups were the bullish demonstrations staged in various railroad shares, notably Southern Railway, which touched a new high for all times. Missouri Pacific Preferred and the coal carrying issues.

WILL MOBILIZE PEACE STRENGTH

September 12 Fixed as Day
for Call to Arms.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY
Washington.—The plans for an army mobilization on the 12th of next September to demonstrate the peace strength of the country's military establishment are taking form. Secretary of War Weeks has approved the mobilization plan as outlined by the general staff and so it seems certain that the program for this demonstration as originally planned will be carried out.

Orders relating to the details of the preparations for the mobilization will go out shortly to the corps area commanders and these commanders will communicate the details of the plan to regular army units within their jurisdiction and to O. R. C. commanders in state adjutants general, etc. It is not proposed that the preparations for this demonstration shall place any considerable amount of work on the various units that go to make up the peace strength of the military establishment.

It is explained that all the general staff here has in mind is that every organized body of men or women that would heed an actual call to arms in case of an emergency shall on the morning of September 12 come to attention, just as they would in case there was actual trouble. Under the revised plan as approved by the secretary of war, hospital units, Red Cross units, boy scouts organizations, as well as all men who have attached themselves to the reserve corps of the army will be expected to report for duty on the morning of September 12.

Summer Maneuvers.
The September mobilization is not to take the place of the regular summer maneuvers. In the Fifth corps area the regulars, the O. R. C. and the National Guard will follow this summer practically the same program they followed in the summer practice drills. In some of the corps areas the corps commanders are planning to have the various military units under them practice on mobilization in advance of the September 12 event. This is a matter, it is explained here, that is entirely in the hands of the corps commanders.

General John J. Pershing has entered heartily into the spirit that is behind the September 12 demonstration. It may turn out, however, that this demonstration will not mark his retirement from the army, although he is eligible to retire on that day. Secretary Weeks has notified President Coolidge that he would like to have General Pershing remain at the head of the army a while longer. The general will, however, it is understood, retire as chief of staff on the day he becomes eligible for a place on the retirement list.

Within the next year there will be some sort of a test of the industrial mobilization plan that has been worked out. Here is how the plan would presumably work out should there ever be another call to war:

How It Would Work.
Picture to yourself noon, the first day of open preparations. Telegrams are sent to the 14 district headquarters in the United States where procurement agents are located. From these radiate telegrams to thousands of manufacturing industries who immediately place into operation the prearranged plans they had for the production of war material. The bird cage manufacturer turns to the making of fuses. Everything goes on a war basis. Reserve officers previously selected take their posts in the production program fully acquainted with their duties and with what has been planned and done to prepare the way. An automatic inventory of the most needed critical raw materials is immediately commenced.

FIRST PICTURES OF FRANKS' SLAYERS IN COURT.

No plant in the country is overloaded beyond its capacity, none of them will find it impossible to obtain raw materials or power to carry on their program and if our plans are laid deeply enough there will be few, if any industries which will have to lay down their work because their activities are so non-essential that they must be suspended and because they have been neglected in the placing of war orders. Equipped from the available war reserves the first two armies will, under the plan prepared by the general staff, be able to enter the theater of operations; and by the time the third army has been organized and trained, its equipment will be on hand.

Bird's Calls Tell Time
Hartford, Conn.—Scientists who have just returned from an exploration of uninhabited islands off the coast of Chile declared they found a bird whose cry tells the time of day. This creature, the jalar, is like a giant guinea hen. With its mates it screams at 9 p. m., again at midnight, and an hour before sunrise. Its distant screams sounding like faint bugle notes.

Tapestries Bring High Prices
London.—High prices were paid by French and English collectors for tapestries, when the late duke of Brunswick-Luneburg's collection came up for auction. One English eighteenth century panel brought $15,000 and three Flemish panels $17,000. The duke's five lots realized $69,000. Five Gobelin tapestries from another collection brought $19,700.

School Laws in Switzerland.
In Switzerland if a child does not attend school on a particular day the parent gets notice from the public authority that he is fined so many francs, the second day the fine is increased, and by the third day the amount becomes a serious one. In case of sickness the pupil is excused, but if there is any suspicion of shaming a doctor is sent to the house.

Europe's Legend.
The legend concerning the naming of Europe is that a beautiful girl by the name of Europa was abducted by Jupiter, in the form of a white bull and carried to Europe, which continent took its name from her.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT ALBANY AVENUE CHURCH

Thus coming Sunday is Children's Day, and the Bible school of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church will hold special exercises at the hour of the morning service, 10:30 o'clock. All members of the school are asked to be present by quarter past ten. The superintendent M. S. Safford, will preside and a splendid pageant entitled "Summer Messengers" will be given under the direction of Mrs. Charles L. Arnold and an able committee. About seventy members of the school will take part in this pageant. There will also be other interesting features including musical members of the Bible school choir and orchestra. The cradle roll department will have its part, and testimonials will be presented to those pupils who have had a high average rating during the past year.

Colonials Play Middletown Here

Rain Prevented Game Wednesday at Middletown, but Red Did Pitching Staff a Favor—Heehs Will Probably Hurt for Victors.

The Colonials lost a chance to get another winning streak started Wednesday when they were held in check by rainy weather. They will meet the Grays, State Hospital team of Middletown, at the Fair Grounds this evening at 6:15 o'clock in the second twilight game of the season. Every effort will be made to start the game at 6:15 sharp.

The Colonials will have to expect their hitting clothes on if they expect to pile up a creditable score in today's game for they will be opposed by Gus Heehs, who has the distinction of being one of the very few pitchers who have ever hung up a shutout against the locals. The Schrickmen remember that defeat and will try to punish Heehs for it today. Heehs will have Bob Corrigan or Pat Coutant facing him. Bob has had a good rest and should be able to put up a good game. The rain yesterday gave the Colonials a day's rest that was greatly needed. If Coutant, Corrigan and Perry can hold the Grays in check so that it will not be necessary to send Jack Morgan to the mound, the hurling staff will be ready again. McLaughlin, the N. Y. U. catcher, will be backstopping in today's contest. He drove in the lone Colonial tally against the Cuban Stars Tuesday and appeared to be a good stickler.

Longevity Recipe

The Cardinal de Solis, archbishop of Seville, in Spain, was one hundred years old when he died. He used to tell his friends, when asked what regimen he observed to enable him to live to such a great age. "By being old when I was young, I am able to be young when I am old. I led a sober, studious, contemplative, but not lazy or sedentary life."

Poverty Reduces Olympic Team

Lack of Funds Compels Cutting American Team to Skeleton of its Former Self—Possibly One-Third Reduction.

By Davis J. Walsh.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 5.—Barring a sudden financial windfall, indications were today that the American Olympic team will be sent abroad to the great tournament of nations at Paris next month in the condition of a lean dancer with a fallen arch. The much abused guest without a wedding garment was in a less embarrassing position than is the Olympic committee at present. Having instituted a drive to $350,000 and having been snubbed by the American public, the committee faces the disagreeable business of wholesale retrenchment in its plans to send a representative team to Paris.

This will be attempted at a special meeting on Sunday and at its conclusion, the probability is that the American Olympic team will be only a bleached, sun-cured skeleton of its original form. It has become necessary to cut every group of competitors—track and field, swimming, boxing, wrestling, fencing, etc.—to the very bone.

Present plans call for wholesale revisions along these lines: Reduction of the American squad from twenty-six to sixteen men; the wrestling team from twenty-one to fourteen men; the dropping of at least two men from the small fencing squad, and the complete elimination of the water polo team from further consideration.

In track, field and swimming, the maximum of four entries in each event will not be followed in cases where the type of competition will not warrant it. Just what events will be affected by this decision are not known at this time but it is said that as many as one-third of those on the program will not see a complete American entry.

As matters stand, it is hardly likely that more than 275 competitors will be taken aboard the America when it sails for abroad. The original prospectus called for a squad, ranging between 350 and 400, but it also called for a fund of $350,000.

The committee has raised something like $200,000 and fully realizes that, in the eleven days remaining before sailing, it hasn't the chance of a web-footed antelope of getting anywhere in particular. It is already "on the nut" a matter of $150,000 for the charter of the steamer.

The eastern tryouts at the Yankee Stadium on Saturday will net a few extra thousands. The final tryouts at Boston may add about $10,000.

The rest of the fund will run for the end book, unless the public turns philanthropic and it is our understanding that the last survivor of American philanthropy dropped dead on his way to the bank with a deposit book.

Odd Experience

While shopping in my home town, writes a correspondent of the Chicago Journal, I was suddenly caught in the arms of an old lady who cried, "Edna, Edna, why did you leave John? Come back to him. John, here's Edna," she screamed. John took me in his arms and tried to kiss me. I hid my face. The clerks had known me for years, and came to my rescue. They were hard to convince that I was not Edna, but after looking me over carefully they left with puzzled looks on their faces.

Finding help's not difficult.

Combs Enthusiastic

Even Over Rivals

Miller Huggins is positive that in Outfielder Earl Combs he has one of the coming stars of the American league.

Combs, after only two years in professional ball, was sold to the Yankees for a sum said to be $50,000.

Huggins says he is worth whatever the club paid for him, and intimates that it might have been more than a cool fifty thou.

"Combs has wonderful natural ability, but better yet he has the spirit and enthusiasm that makes a winning ball player," says Huggins.

"Watch the Yankee bench and you will notice that Combs is always bubbling over with enthusiasm, to which he gives vent at every opportunity.

"He even can enthuse when his rival for the position comes through. That spirit can't be denied. Watch Combs."

CURVED BALL PUTS BIG STRAIN ON ARM

Wonderful Thing to Give Some Batters.

Pitching isn't what it used to be. Ed Walsh says so and Ed was one of the greatest pitchers of his time and therefore must know something about pitching.

"The boys don't come up any more with a curve ball," Ed says. "Now a curve requires a lot of work to attain, but after you get a good curve it is the most useful thing in the pitcher's stock to throw in a pinch."

"I never was a curve ball pitcher, but the splitter was allowed in my day. I guess," he continued, "one of the reasons why the young men don't take to the curve more readily is because it puts a strain on the arm. It catches you in the elbow and there is no escape from the penalty it takes on the throwing arm. But the curve is a wonderful thing when certain batters are facing you in a pinch."

"There are some batters like Cobb, Speaker, Collins and a few others who are likely to outsmart the pitcher in the pinch, but as a general rule if you can give the man at the plate a curve when the situation is tense you have the long end of it."

Walsh is performing quite a valuable service for the Sox. He is schooling the young pitchers not only upon the field, but in private conferences he is imparting his knowledge of the pitching art to the kids as fast as they absorb it.

Can "Tiny" Turn Trick?

Glenn "Tiny" Hartranft, Stanford university athlete, is certain of a place on the American Olympic games team by reason of his work in the 16-pound shot and discus. Hartranft recently made a heave of 50 feet 1 1/2 inches, which is one-half inch short of equalling Ralph Rose's world's record in the 16-pound shot. Hartranft is picked to break the record in the Olympic tryouts.

Andorra's Strong Box.

Six iron locks, connected by an iron chain, guard a massive chest in the council hall of the little republic of Andorra, on the southern slope of the Pyrenees. A consul from each of the six parishes has a key, and the locks cannot all be opened unless the six consuls are present. No stranger is permitted to see the contents of the box, but they are supposed to be sheets of lead upon which is written the charter granted by Charlemagne.

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES SERIES, NO. 17

JOSEPHUS DANIELS

TAGGING ALL THE BASES IN THE MAJOR LEAGUE.

After knocking at the door several days, the Red Sox jumped into the lead when they trimmed the Browns 6 to 5, while the Yankees were losing to the White Sox.

Lyons chalked up his second victory over the Yankees and the White Sox shoved the Yankees into second place, winning 4 to 3.

The Athletics shoved the Indians into the cellar, Burns's pitching in the last two innings being a masterful exhibition. Score, 6 to 5.

Fothergill, pinch hitting for Danks in the tenth, shot a single which scored the winning run for the Tigers over the Senators, 6 to 5.

Freigan had a field day while the Cardinals beat the Phillies 12 to 5.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Norton, 1 Post street, a son, Robert Edward.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian L. Schledde, 104 Ahrum street, a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Jankoski, 154 Third avenue, a daughter, Helen Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Wendland, 43 Second avenue, a son, Robert William.

A Cake Sale.

The Sewing Circle of the Church of the Redeemer will hold a cake sale on Saturday from 12 o'clock to the S. J. Messinger meat market on Broadway.

NATIONAL STERLING SILVER WEEK

JUNE 2-7

for Graduation too—

A LESSON IN CULTURE

THE Graduate of to-day is the Bride of tomorrow. A graduation gift of Sterling Silver is a post-graduate lesson in culture.

Teach her now to appreciate the better things in life. Homes that are to be a credit to the nation must be conceived in the minds of those who know the value and culture of things real. Hundreds of things you can give her of course will give her a thrill of happiness. A gift of Sterling Silver will give her that—and something more. A beautiful vision of the time when it will beautify her home—useful, lasting, and a cherished possession—but it must be Sterling.

Confer with your jeweler concerning your gift to the June Bride or the Girl Graduate. He will show you an infinite variety of designs specially exhibited during Sterling Silver Week.

Cordially yours,
